THREE BOATS IN THE TRIAL RACES

Reliance, Columbia and Constitution Start on a Long Spin

NEW BOAT TAKES A LEAD

Shows Rivals Her Heels in Contest for Honor of Defending the Cup.

Matinicock Point, L. I., May 23.—The three ninety-footers—Columbia, Constitution and Reliance—started today in the second of the preliminary races between the three rivals for the honor of defending the America's cup against Lipton's Shamrock III. During the early morning there was a good breeze, which for a time died down and later freshened up again. The start was scheduled for noon, but as the Columbia was becalmed off Glen Cove it was necessary to postpone it until shortly before 2 o'clock. The course was the same as on Thursday, a run before the wind for eleven miles, a reach across the sound for three miles and a beat home of eleven miles, twenty-five miles all told.

The preliminary gun was fired at 1:35 and the boats got ready for the start, which came fifteen minutes later.

Official starting time: Reliance, 1:50:20; Constitution, 1:50:29; Columbia, 1:52:00.

The Columbia was handicapped about thirty-five seconds.

FIGHT FOR POSITION.

The fight for position before the start was all in favor of Reliance. All three boats swung around and headed for the line when they were scarcely a quarter of a mile away from it. The Constitution was the first to head for it, but Captain Barr placed the Reliance in a nice position on the Constitution's weather quarter, the Columbia behind the other two boats. Five minutes before the start the Reliance and Columbia broke out their balloon jib topsails, but the Constitution broke out a small reaching jib topsail. The Reliance soon began to gain on the Constitution and they went across the line almost together. The Columbia was handicapped. At no time was the breeze of sufficient strength to blow out the flags on any of the boats so that the race started as did that on Thursday, in a drift. The Reliance soon showed that she was the best drifter of the three and in five minutes was 100 yards ahead of the Constitution. By 2 o'clock the Reliance had increased her lead to 300 yards and was going very fast, seemingly catching a light air. She dropped the other boats constantly and it looked at this time like a repetition of the Thursday race. The supposed drifting ability of the Constitution did not develop as she could not gain on the Columbia even. The wind, what there was of it, was light from the south or southwest, it was hard to tell which.

At 2:25 the Reliance was a mile ahead of the other two boats, having sailed two miles to their one.

NEW BOAT STILL LEADING.

The Reliance passed Oak Neck about 2:30 three miles from the start, and at that time was a mile and a half ahead of the other two boats. The Constitution was leading the Columbia about one-quarter of a mile. At 2:45 the Reliance got a little air coming out of Oyster bay and began to gain more. The Constitution also gained a little on the Columbia, but the race for those two boats seemed hopeless. The air was very light, however, almost all from the southwest.

The Reliance at 3 o'clock was still leading both the other boats and seemed to be steadily increasing her lead. The wind was decreasing, but what little there was was favoring the Reliance, whose sails were well filled, while those of the Columbia and Constitution hung almost slack and they were practically becalmed and drifting.

A SUDDEN BREAK IN STEEL TRUST SHARES

Rumor That Western Braonhes are to Be Shut Down Affects Market.

New York, May 23.—Shares of the United States Steel Corporation broke abruptly in the local market today on rumors of a probable shutdown of some of the company's plants in Chicago. Nothing about these rumors could be learned at the main office of the corporation. Judge Gary, chairman of the executive committee, said he had heard nothing of such reports.

Concerning the report that the corporation had closed a contract to purchase a large amount of pig iron for delivery the last half of the current year, Judge Gary said: "I do not think any purchases of pig iron have been made by any of the subsidiary companies during the last few weeks. Some has been bought within sixty or seventy days. Considerable outside iron could be used at the present time, and probably would be purchased if it could be secured at a fair price. Inasmuch as the prices of finished materials have been kept down to the prices which prevailed when pig iron was selling at $16.50 or lower, it has seemed to me the price of iron should be restored in a measure at least and that the price now demanded is high by comparison, notwithstanding it costs something more to produce it. However, the matter is now in the hands of our Mr. Dickson, and he will deal fairly with outside producers."

ROSA KAISER'S BODY FOUND IN THE CREEK

Girl Had Been Shockingly Murdered Presumably by a Colored Wretch

Guilford, Ind., May 23.—The body of Miss Rosa Kaiser, of Manchester, was found in Tanner's creek today. Her skull had been crushed and her face bruised and gashed, showing the terrible struggle she had made in defense. It is supposed she was attacked Thursday night where her father, who was close behind her returning home, was knocked down by a colored man and left unconscious until the next morning. He is still in a critical condition. The negro suspected of the crime has not been found.

BUCKETSHOPS RAIDED.

Chicago, May 23.—George T. Sullivan, charged with conducting a bucketshop and swindling patrons, and a large force of employes were arrested today. Sullivan showed papers purporting to enjoin authorities from molesting him, but they were ignored. Sullivan's office was surrounded and many tried to escape from windows, only to rush into the arms of the officers. Hundreds of people witnessed the raid.

Thousands of persons all over the country are believed to have invested their money in grain, cotton, coffee and provisions futures through the firm. The concern occupies an entire lower floor at the above number and forty young women are employed as bookkeepers and stenographers. The police claim that within two weeks Sullivan has secured $50,000. The concern has leased wires to many cities, the main offices being in Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, Council Bluffs, Altoona, Pa.; Akron, O., and Burlington, Ia. The police confiscated all books and instruments, cut the wires and placed men in charge of the place.

BOER COLONIES IN MEXICO.

El Paso, Texas, May 23.—Gen. G. D. Joubert and Capt. W. S. O'Donnell, promoters of the Boer colony at Tamulipas, Mexico, are here after closing the contract with a syndicate that will furnish the finances for the colony. This is the second Boer colony to be planted in Mexico. The Boers will occupy 83,000 acres. The syndicate in Mexico will bring people from Africa, let them have implements, live stock and give them credit at their stores. The settlers pay for land at the rate of fifteen shillings per acre each year for a number of years. The land, 500 miles north of Victoria, Mexico, has a frontage on a navigable river. A railroad will be built through the tract.

Homer Hartman, Herman Hormel and Carl Yaple left this morning for Claypool upon a fishing expedition.

FATAL FROLIC OF WIND IN KANSAS

Tornadoes Continue to Take Life snd Destroy Property Out There

RILEY COUNTY IS SWEPT

Great Damage Reported—From Other Section Come the Stories of Storms.

Kansas City, Mo., May 23.—A special to the Star from Manhattan, Kan., says: A tornado passed over the western part of Riley county last evening, traveling in a northwesterly direction. At Bala, on the Rock Island road, two people were killed and twelve injured, several, it is thought, fatally. Railroad traffic was blocked for some time on account of great trees and debris being blown on the track. The storm was accompanied by a heavy rain and hail stones of unusual size. Many dwellings and out buildings were wrecked.

MANY OTHER TOWNS SUFFER.

Kansas City, Mo., May 23.—In the storm that struck ten miles southeast of Dodge City, a herder, name unknown, was killed and Mrs. Tibb Shane was fatally injured. Many small buildings were wrecked and scores of cattle were killed. The report that Mulvane, Kas., had been swept away by a tornado proves to have been exaggerated. More or less damage was caused at that place, but as far as can be learned there was no serious loss and no casualties are reported.

In the northwestern corner of Dickinson county, where eight dwellings were wrecked, ex-State Representative Harvey and wife and Miss Ellen Young were badly injured, but will recoved. The track of the storm in Dickinson county was a quarter of a mile wide and twenty miles in length and it is estimated that $30,000 damage was done to crops alone.

At Augusta, Kan., the roof was blown off the school house and the Methodist church was damaged.

A tornado struck Whitehead, Oklahoma, demolishing the general store of N. Filmore & Co., and several buildings.

TORNADO HITS EUREKA.

Topeka, Kan., May 23.—A tornado struck Eureka at midnight, destroying a score of residences and doing other damage. Mrs. H. J. German and Mrs. Frank Sample were fatally hurt and half a dozen others were more or less seriously injured. The storm struck in the southeastern portion of the resident district. It was of short duration and accompanied by a flood of rain.

STORMS IN IOWA.

Estherville, Iowa, May 23.—A severe wind and rainstorm passed over this place last night, doing much damage. The house of H. Hensinger was blown down and Mrs. Hensinger was painfully, but not seriously injured.

St. Charles, Minn., May 23.—At midnight a tornado tore the race track buildings to pieces and killed five horses. Many windmills and barns were blown down.

IN JUSTICES' COURTS.

Jack Case broke loose yesterday and as a result he will be compelled to answer a charge of drunkenness as soon as the police get hold of him. He attempted to exercise his vocabulary of profanity at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Josie Case, and after belaboring him with a broomstick to her entire satisfaction, she proceeded to file an affidavit against him.

The case against Dr. Archer, a Calhoun street dentist, charged with assaulting Bert Chapman, has been set for trial in Justice Tancey's court Monday morning.

Michael Hamrick and Eliza Dehoff were married at the clerk's office in the court house yesterday afternoon. Justice Tancey performed the ceremonies. Both of the contracting parties live at Edgerton.

MARRIAGE LICENSES.

Michael H. Homrick and Elizabeth Dehoff.

Franklin A. Byers and Goldie M. Taylor.

Sion S. Bass post, G. A. R., will meet at its hall at 9 o'clock tomorrow to attend services at Christ's Lutheran church. All ex-soldiers are invited to join in the service.

FOUR ARE KILLED IN FALLING ELEVATOR

Jollification by Students in Pittsburg Turned to a Shocking Tragedy.

Pittsburg, Pa., May 23.—It was almost 12 o'clock this afternoon before any of the victims of last night's frightful elevator accident at the Donnelly building, during the electro-mechanical institute ball, were identified.

Crowds surrounded the entrance of the morgue all night, awaiting information as to the identification of the four bodies that had been taken there from the scene of the accident. The bodies were so badly disfigured and distorted that identification was only possible through marks on the clothing worn, and as some had no marks on their clothing, identification was impossible until friends inquired for them because missed from their homes.

The casualty list as furnished by the coroner and obtained from the hospitals is:

The dead:

Miss Mamie Curtin, 18 years old, of Hazelwood, Pa.

Miss Susie Flannigan, 19 years old, of 427 Woodland avenue, Allegheny.

Rayden P. F. Flohr, 28 years old, of McKee's Rocks.

Nellie Sweeney, aged 16.

The injured:

Albert Myers, 23 years old, laceration of right hip and compound fracture of right hip and compound fracture of right leg.

Harry Lipson, 22 years old, scalp wounds.

Miss Katie Flannigan, 2(years old.

Mrs. Lulu Postelwaite, 46 years old.

Miss Margaret Postelwaite, 17 years old, daughter of Mrs. Lulu Postelwaite, suffering from nervous shock.

Charles Blonde, 18 years old.

Fannie Simmond, 20 years old.

John Morrison, 35 years old.

Frank Hamrock, 28 years old.

L. N. Gillis, 40 years old.

Mrs. L. N. Gillis.

Paul Gillis, 3 years old.

Unknown man, about 24 years old, bruised and cut; is unconscious; at the Mercy hospital.

The injured are all suffering from severe cuts and bruises, but with the exception of the unknown man, it is thought all will recover.

Coroner Jesse H. McGeary and his assistants were kept busy throughout the night answering telephone calls from friends and others anxious to ascertain particulars. The coroner at the earliest time possible sent out summonses for a jury to inquire into the cause of the accident and to fix responsibility. This jury met in the court room of the morgue building at 10 o'clock this morning and a rigid investigation was at once started.

After the jury had been sworn and had viewed the remains of the victims, friends were given permission to remove the bodies to their homes.

The accident occurred at 1026 Fifth avenue, the fifth and sixth floors of which building are occupied by the Pennsylvania Electric Mechanical institute. The employes and students of the institute had cleared the floors and sent out a large number of invitations for a ball, which was to be held last evening. There were probably 700 people in the hall at 10 o'clock, when the elevator started from the first floor loaded with seventeen people. The fifth floor was devoted to dancing, while the sixth was arranged for a dining and cloak room. The guests were first taken to the sixth floor.

Just as the elevator reached that floor there was a crash and it fell to the bottom. Not one of the seventeen occupants escaped injury. The two heavy weights, each weighing a ton, fell on the victims after the elevator had reached the bottom. The dead were terribly crushed, and it was some time before they were identified. The accident is attributed to the overloaded elevator and a new elevator man who did not understand his business.

When the noise of the elevator crashing to the ground reached the ball room a dance was in progress. The wildest confusion followed and a serious panic was narrowly averted. Women rushed to the open elevator shaft and were ready to jump down. Several of the men who remained cool-headed rushed before them and closed the gates, then by main force they shoved the panic-stricken people back into the ballroom and closed the doors. Dozens of women fainted in the room. The fire and police departments were called out, as were all of the available hospital ambulances.

The furniture used in Cuba is largely from the United States.

M'BRIDE WANTS TO FIGHT DUELS

Husband of Maud Gonne, the Irish Joan of Arc, Has Issued Challenges

THINKS WIFE MISUSED

Willing to Fight Redmond, Harrington, or Any of Their Friends.

London, May 23.—Major McBride, organizer of the Irish Transvaal brigade, in an open letter from Paris has challenged John Redmond, Timothy C. Harrington and their friends to fight one or more duels in consequence of their attitude towards Mrs. McBride (formerly Maude Gonne) at the meeting of citizens held in Dublin rotunda on Monday night last in support of the Irish parliamentary fund and which resulted in scenes of extreme disorder owing to the presence of members of the Gaelic league who are opposed to giving King Edward a friendly welcome on his coming visit. Major McBride says:

"It seems that only the fact that my wife is a lady prevented Redmond and Harrington and their friends from dealing summarily with her. They evidently regret that it was not her husband who was present. Unfortunately I cannot go to Ireland at present, but in the meantime, if any of them feel aggrieved at my wife's action, I shall be most happy to afford them satisfaction in this accommodating country, France."

GRANTS CHANGE OF VENUE.

Lafayette, Ind., May 23.—Judge De Hart, of the Tippecanoe circuit court, today sustained a motion for a change of venue in the Moses Fowler Chase case. Attorneys for the respondent made a motion for a change of venue, accompanied by affidavits that the father of Moses Fowler Chase has an undue influence over the citizens of Tippecanoe county and that an odium attaches to the defendant's cause of defense on account of local prejudice. Judge De Hart sustained the motion and sent the case to Benton county.

DEMURRER IS GRANTED.

Indianapolis, May 23.—Federal Judge Francis E. Baker has granted the demurrer of the defendant against the petition of H. C. Beogle, the Illinois receiver for the Vandalia who had asked that the court direct Volney T. Malott, Indiana receiver for the Vandalia, to turn over to him the surplus earnings of the Illinois road. In granting the demurrer, however, the court granted to the petitioner the right to file an amended petition.

STRIKE IS EXPECTED.

Chicago, May 23.—General managers of the various railroads centering in Chicago would not commit themselves today by expressing an opinion on the subject of the demands made by the freight handlers. They have not yet returned any answer to the demands and will not state the nature of the reply that will be given. It is believed, however, that their answer will be a refusal to grant the concessions asked. The general managers evidently expect a strike and are preparing to meet it. The present attitude of their employes is considered by them unreasonable in view of the adjustment made nine months ago.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Clarinda, Ia., May 23.—During an electrical storm last night John Coons, of this city, was struck by lightning and instantly killed. He went to a window to put down the shade and the bolt passed through his right shoulder and through his body. His year-old son was severely shocked and it is feared will not recover. Several other occupants of the house were rendered unconscious but soon recovered.

COLORADO WILL NOT PAY.

Denver, Col., May 23.—Colorado has again declined in a communication from the governor to the secretary of state at Washington to reimburse E. M. Radcliffe, an Englishman, for his property at Grand Mesa lakes, which was burned by a mob two years ago. This refusal is based upon a report from the district attorney at Grand Junction that he could ascertain no facts that would make it incumbent on the state to pay damages.

IDEAL WEATHER IS TACOMA'S TRIBUTE

Presidential Party Guests of the Metropolis of Washington.

Tacoma, Wash., May 23.—Ideal weather favored President Roosevelt on his trip up Puget Sound today. The party left the Tacoma hotel shortly before 9 o'clock for a drive to the wharf, accompanied by an escort of police and cavalry and a band of music. Crowds lined Pacific avenue and cheered the president heartily. All the shipping was gay with flags and streamers, among them the revenue cutter McCulloch, which was handsomely dressed. In the steamer Spokane, which conveyed the party north, the president's flag was raised at 9:05 by a special detail from the McCulloch as the president stepped aboard the former named steamer. The McCulloch left just ahead of the Spokane for the run to the naval station at Bremerton, two hours distance. There were about 150 guests, including members of the chamber of commerce of Tacoma, the state, city and county officials, aboard the Spokane. The stay at Bremerton will be brief as the president is due at Seattle at 1 o'clock.

SWITCHMEN CHANGE LAWS.

Indianapolis, May 23.—The switchmen of North America made some minor changes in the constitution today. The convention will be in session the greater part of next week. Indianapolis, Fort Worth and Buffalo want the convention next year.

LAUNDRY STRIKE IN CHICAGO TO GO ON

Conference Between Employers and Employes Ends in a Deadlock.

Chicago, May 23.—The laundry strike is to be prosecuted with renewed vigor, a two hours' conference today between employers and employes having resulted in a deadlock. Propositions and counter-propositions were submitted and after a futile effort to arrive at an amicable settlement committees representing the laundry workers union, the Chicago Federation of Labor, the engineers, firemen's and teamsters' unions withdrew from the conference, declaring that all negotiations were off. Labor officials assert that all unions affiliated with the Chicago Federation of Labor will now be brought into the fight and that the war would not be directed against the laundries alone, but that union drivers would be instructed not to deliver goods or supplies of any kind even to the homes of the laundry owners. The deadlock occurred over a clause providing that no sympathetic strike should be called during the life of the proposed agreement and for the return arbitration of all difficulties.

MISS HANKER'S RECEPTION.

The sixth annual entertainment and reception of the Hanker dancing academy was given last evening in the Anthony Wayne club and several hundred people were guests. From 8 to 10 o'clock Miss Hanker's children's classes gave a number of very pretty dancing figures, among them being the Faust waltz, sand dance, Japonica, buck and wing, April showers, rainbow dance, May flowers, sword dance, Dutch wooden shoe dance, skirt dance, toe dance, Japanese dance. The children executed the figures very gracefully and their work was much enjoyed. At 10 o'clock the floor was cleared for dancing for the older pupils and Reineke's orchestra played a program of eighteen numbers.

RACING AT HAWTHORNE.

Chicago, May 23.—The racing season at Hawthorne will be inaugurated this afternoon with a $10,000 handicap, which has become an annual event in local racing. Although twenty-one horses have been announced as possible starters, it is doubtful if more than a dozen will be in the field. G. C. Bennett's Little Scout was a favorite in the forenoon's betting at 5 to 2. The weather forecaster predicts probable showers.

CHURCH WILL BE DEDICATED.

The United Brethren congregation at Roanoke has just completed a handsome new house of worship, which will be dedicated Sunday, June 7th, by William M. Bell, D. D., of Dayton, Ohio. Rev. J. L. Goshert is the pastor of the church.

CHILDREN SOLD TO OBTAIN FOOD

Appalling State of Famine is Reported from a Province in China

HUNDREDS HAVE STARVED

Consul McWade Reports That Thousands Must Die if Relief Fails.

Washington, May 23.—United States Consul General McWade, at Canton, under date of April 7, sent to the state department a detailed report of the famine conditions in Kwangsi in support of his cabled appeal for help.

He produces a mass of information, which he declares to be reliable, from American missionary and native sources in Ka Kwai Ping, Wu Chow and other places, showing the destitution and the consequent suffering which the consul general says is absolutely appalling.

He says that the heads of the families in their desperation were selling their children for from two to five dollars each, yet so many were the offerings and so few the purchases that not all could be sold even at this price.

Mr. McWade says that so heartrending were the appeals for aid that he had contributed far beyond his means and would have given more had he had the money.

When the report was written the famine was increasing greatly in severity and thousands were starving to death.

In one village 200 people perished from starvation and he said that unless relief came soon thousands and thousands would starve.

Whole families were subsisting on a few ounces of rice a day and are eating herbs and leaves. Unless the rice and other crops of July, August and September proved plentiful the famine would be only slightly alleviated.

In conclusion Mr. McWade says: "The natives feel that the Americans have come amongst them for their and our mutual benefit and not as their enemies, nor to seize any of their land under any specious or other pretenses. That feeling is emphasized by the great charity of our people at home who in their earnest efforts to relieve and not to destroy, know no religion, creed, race or nation."

MUSICIANS ADJOURN.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 23.—The national convention of the Federation of Musicians adjourned today. New York was selected as the next place for meeting. The federation adopted a rule forbidding its members to play at any function, public or private, where government musicians appear. It was also decided to ask congress to pass a law materially increasing the pay of members of the military government bands.

The color line was abolished and unions of colored musicians will not be designated as colored any longer. The international or low pitch, which is a half tone lower than high pitch, was adopted and made official.

KENTUCKY TOWN BURNING.

Louisville, Ky., May 23.—A special from Carlisle, Ky., says: Fire which was beyond control at noon, has already destroyed the city school. The west wall of the building in falling, injured a number of people, among them Rev. T. M. Tinder, Chief of Police Dunn, Edwin Ewing, E. O. Dorsey, Thomas George, Ed Moore and Peter Allen. The only fire engine the town boasts turned over when it reached the fire and Paris has been wired for help.

BRIBER IS CONVICTED.

St. Louis, Mo., May 23.—After being out fifty-five minutes, the jury in the case of Emil Hartmann, former member of the house of delegates, for bribery, returned a verdict this afternoon before Judge Ryan, finding Hartmann guilty and fixing his punishment at six years in the penitentiary. The penalty is the heaviest that has been inflicted so far in the bribery trials.

TOWN ALMOST DESTROYED.

Cripple Creek, Colo., May 23.—The town of Altman, on top of Bull Hill, was almost totally destroyed by a fire that started early today at the Altman hotel. The firemen's hose was cut and it is believed the fire was of incendiary origin. The flames were checked by blowing up several buildings.

FIRST M. E. CHURCH TO BE DEDICATED SUNDAY

FIRST SERVICES HELD TOMORROW

Handsome New First Methodist Episcopal Church to be Dedicated

BISHOP JOYCE OFFICIATES

Other Churches of the City to Join in the Felititous Occasion.

The magnificent new First Methodist Episcopal church of Fort Wayne, just erected at East Wayne and Lafayette streets, will be formally dedicated tomorrow to the holy purposes for which it was constructed. The day will be a notable one in Fort Wayne Methodism, for it marks the successful fruition of long-cherished plans of the oldest Methodist congregation of the city, and all the other churches of that denomination in Fort Wayne are united with the First church in the observance of the occasion.

The event, too, is signalled by the presence of one of the most eminent men of modern Methodism—Bishop Isaac W. Joyce, of Minneapolis, who will be in charge of the services, and the attendance is certain to be very large. The program of the day's service includes many notable features, and it is hoped to have present not only the older members of the congregation, but a number of ministers who have been its pastors in years agone, when the society was known as the Berry street church.

BISHOP ISAAC W. JOYCE, D. D.
Who Officiates at the Dedication of the New First Methodist Episcopal Church.

The edifice itself is one of the finest in the city; the location is a new one for the congregation, and gives it a field that is believed to have many advantages in being removed somewhat further from other churches of the same denomination in the city. In the preparation of the order of service for tomorrow there has been a most felicitous conception, both the spiritual and the musical offerings being of a very high order. Bishop Joyce is to preach two sermons, morning and evening. Mrs. F. E. Stouder is to preside at the organ, and the augmented choir will be one of the finest ever heard in the city. The complete program follows:

Hymn No. 868

We rear not a temple, like Judah's of old,
Whose portals were marble, whose vaultings were gold;
No incense is lighted, no victims are slain.
No monarch kneels praying to hallow the fane.

More simple and lowly the walls that we raise,
And humbler the pomp of procession and praise,
Where the heart is the altar whence incense shall roll,
And Messiah the King who shall pray for the soul.

O Father, come in! but not in the cloud
Which filled the bright courts where thy chosen ones bowed;
But come in that Spirit of glory and grace
Which beams on the soul and illumines the race.

The pomp of Moriah has long passed away,
And soon shall our fraller erection decay;
But the souls that are builded in worship and love
Shall be temples to God, everlasting above.

Hymn No. 869.

Oh Thou, whose own vast temple stands,
Built over earth and sea,
Accept the walls that human hands
Have raised to worship Thee!

May erring minds that worship here
Be taught the better way;
And they who mourn, and they who fear
Be strengthened as they pray.

May faith grow firm, and love grow warm
And pure devotion rise,
While round these hallowed walls the storm
Of earthborn passion dies.

Hymnal No. 770.

I love Thy kingdom, Lord,
The house of Thine abode;
The church our blest Redeemer saved
With His own precious blood.

I love Thy church, O God!
Her walls before Thee stand,
Dear as the apple of Thine eye,
And graven on Thy hand.

For her my tears shall fall,
For her my prayers ascend;
To her my cares and toils be given,
Till toils and cares shall end.

REV. J. K. WALTS.

Rev. J. K. Walts, pastor of the First M. E. church, was born in Floyd county, this state, and received his early education in the district schools of that county. After completing the common school course, he entered Asbury university (now Depauw), where he remained six years, graduating in 1869 with the degree of A. B. Rev. Walts became principal of the New Albany high school the same year and then assumed the principalship of the Floyd county public schools. He was head of the New Albany Y. M. C. A. while a resident of that city and was for a year examiner of the state university. In 1872 Rev. Walts took the degree of A. M. and entered the ministry in the northern Indiana conference in 1876 and was ordained an elder in 1880. His first charge was at Dublin in 1876 and from there he went to Lincoln, Lima and Waterloo in the order named, and was appointed pastor of the Berry street M. E. church, this city, in 1883.

Rev. Walts remained as pastor of Berry street church three years and has had the following charges up to the time of returning to what is now the First M. E. church: Grace church at Richmond, Greenfield, Winchester, Auburn and Logansport. In April of last year he was returned to the Berry street church, this city, succeeding Rev. H. J. Norris, and was returned to the charge again this year.

During Rev. Walts' term as head of the Y. M. C. A. at New Albany he inaugurated a system of cottage prayer meetings and as a result 500 people professed religion in that winter. With the assistance of a number of Christian young men living in New Albany, Rev. Walts conducted meetings at the reformatory which resulted in more than 200 of the prisoners professing Christianity.

IT GOES BACK TO 1830

Founders Worshipped in Homes, Shops and Schools in Early Days.

The Berry street Methodist Episcopal congregation, which is to dedicate its handsome new house of worship at East Wayne and Lafayette streets tomorrow under the name of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Fort Wayne, is the pioneer organization of Methodism in Fort Wayne. Its history goes back to the days of long ago, and the founders of the society, sturdy followers of Wesley, worshipped in the homes, the school buildings, the halls and the carpenter shops of the city before the days of churches here. The edifice to be dedicated tomorrow is the third house of worship erected by the congregation.

It was in 1824 that James Holman, a local preacher of the Methodist church and a religious worker of much power, removed from Wayne county to Fort Wayne, then but a small village. He purchased a farm in what is now a part of the city north of the St. Mary's river and made his home in a log cabin which stood at a point near the site of the old stone mill which is now being dismantled, and near where the Nickel Plate railroad crosses St. Mary's river. Rev. Holman preached the gospel to as many as would come to his house to hear him, or would gather where he went in the homes of the early settlers about the country.

FIRST ORGANIZATION.

Rev. Holman's meetings continued until the latter part of 1830, when Alexander Wiley, then a presiding elder of the Ohio conference, came to Fort Wayne to establish a mission to be embraced in his district. A little later he was succeeded by Nehemiah B. Griffith, who was followed in turn by Richard S. Robinson and the latter by Boyd Phelps. It was under the ministry of the latter that the new organization was given the name of Maumee mission—the first organization of Methodism in Fort Wayne. The last missionary sent by the Ohio conference was Freeman Farnsworth, and in the mission days the services were held in various convenient places. In 1832 there were precisely six members in the class—Judge Robert Breckinridge and his wife, James Holman, his wife and daughter, and Miss Alderman, who afterwards became Mrs. Simon Edsall. George Breckenridge, of this city, is a son of Judge Breckenridge, who was one of the original members of the church.

Rev. Farnsworth had been in charge of the mission but a year when the Indiana conference was formed, and the latter body sent Rev. James S. Harrison to Fort Wayne, the name of the church then changing from Maumee mission to Fort Wayne circuit.

IT WAS A FAILURE.

It was during the pastorate of Rev. Harrison, in 1835-36, that the first attempt was made to erect a church. The congregation secured a lot on West Main street, between Cass and Ewing streets, and began the work of church building upon a plan most imposing for those days. The building was to be of frame, with large steeple, gothic windows and extensive equipment, but funds were scarce; hopes were dashed, and the project resulted in failure long before the church building neared a state of completion. The frame was afterwards torn down and the lot reverted to the Ewings, from whom it had been secured.

Services were held for a time in the school building then standing upon the site of the present county jail; in the Masonic hall, a two-story brick building which stood on West Columbia street upon the site of the present Bash building; in a carpenter shop which occupied the present site of the Rurode Dry Goods company's store, and also at the school house of Alexander McJunkin, on Lafayette street. The latter building, now considerably transformed, however, is yet standing upon Lafayette street, between Wayne and Berry streets, and is owned by C. C. Schlatter.

TRIED IT ONCE MORE.

It was in 1840 or thereabouts that the second attempt at church building was made by the little congregation and this time success crowned the effort. A lot was secured at Berry and Harrison streets and a frame house of worship was erected. Rev. Francis A. Conwell was the first pastor, and it was at the time that this frame church was erected that the society dropped the name "Fort Wayne circuit" and became the Berry street Methodist Episcopal church. It is believed the adoption of the name occurred in 1841 and it was a year later, in 1842, that George W. Brackenridge, now seventy-seven years of age, and the oldest surviving member of the church, became affiliated with the society. Rev. George M. Boyd was then pastor. Other pastors who succeeded him included Rev. Hawley B. Beers, 1844; Rev. John S. Bayless, 1845-6; Rev. Samuel Brenton, who afterwards represented this district in congress, 1847; Rev. Amasa Johnson, 1848; Rev. William Wilson, 1849-50; Rev. Homer C. Benson, 1851, and Rev. Milton Mahin, 1852. The latter is yet living in quiet retirement at Newcastle, this state. It was in 1849, with a membership of 217, that a division was made and Wayne street church was organized.

SECOND CHURCH BUILT.

After twenty years of worship in the old frame building it gave way, in 1860, to the brick structure which the congregation is now leaving and which has been the church home of the members for more than forty years. Only the lower story of the structure was completed at first, and for several years the congregation worshiped there before the entire building was completed. The exact date of its dedication is not known, but it was dedicated by Rev. Thomas Eddy and is believed to have been in 1864. Through all the intervening years down to the present the congregation, changing in its personnel as death and birth and removal made their transformations, but steadfast in its faith, the society has occupied the old building about which so many tender, delightful memories cluster. The last public service held in the old building was the prayer meeting service on the night of May 20, 1903. Two years ago the building and site were sold to E. C. Rurode, the East Wayne street location purchased, and the erection of the new church begun later. The present pastor, Rev. J. K. Walts, enjoys the unique distinction of having been twice pastor of the congregation. He first held the position some years ago and the conference of 1902 returned him again to the charge he had filled in younger years. The old building and site, which sold for $40,000, will in time be transformed once more, doubtless as completely as when the forests were cleared away to make room for the first building upon the spot. The old building is to be demolished in due time and it will doubtless give way to a handsome modern structure that will rear its stately height over the spot where for sixty years worshipers have gathered to hear the words of eternal life.

A DENIAL BY GOULD.

New York, May 23.—George J. Gould, in an interview here, denied that he was secretly interested in a project to reach the Pacific coast by an independent line from Salt Lake City. Mr. Gould also said that he had not a dollar invested in any railroad project west of Ogden, and that he was not identified with David H. Moffat's Denver, Northwestern and Pacific, which is being built through the mountains of northwestern Colorado from Denver to Salt Lake City.

THE OLD BERRY STREET M. E. CHURCH.

HANDSOME AND VERY COMPLETE

First M. E. Church Building is a Notable Addition to the City's Churches

APPOINTMENTS MODERN

Nothing Wanting to Equip the Edifice for Purposes of the Congregation.

The new edifice, the First Methodist Episcopal church of Fort Wayne, which is to be dedicated tomorrow is one of the most beautiful and imposing church structures in Fort Wayne. The accompanying cut and following description give a good idea of the new building:

It stands on the southwest corner of Wayne and Lafayette streets. It is of Gothic design; built of brick trimmed in stone; the cost, including pipe organ, etc., approximating $25,000, the amount set aside by the quarterly conference.

The edifice is 113 feet long and 58 feet in width in front and 66 feet in the rear.

The general outlines of the exterior of the building are somewhat classical, consisting of nave, transepts, chancel, etc. This, however, does not obtain in the interior arrangements of the building, as the interior is modern in all of its arrangements.

There are four general entrances to the building, two from the front, or Wayne street, entering into vestibules which occupy the space in the two towers, and two entrances at the sides of the building (one on each side), each entering a large vestibule, from which direct entrances are had both from the main church auditorium and to the Sunday school department. All of these entrance doors open outward into reveals prepared to receive them, and all entrances are entirely under cover.

The windows lighting the interior are all of glazed with colored art glass leaded in beautiful patterns and of such designs as are in keeping with the finish and decoration of the interior of the building. The transept windows are large tracery windows 18x24 in size, filled with heavy Gothic tracery. A similar window, but not as large, forms the central feature of the front of the building.

The interior is arranged after what is generally known as the "rear extension plan." The main auditorium being toward the front of the building, and the Sunday school department in the rear of the main auditorium, separated from it by sliding doors.

The auditorium has what is denominated a "bowled" raised floor and the seating is in the amphitheatrical form, with circular pews. The main or body seats in this room will seat comfortably 426 persons; folding seats are also placed on the walls, which, when closed, are not distinguishable, but when open add sixty to the seating capacity of the room. The pulpit and the altar platform and rail are located in the center of the front of this room, and eliptical in general outline. The choir loft and organ are placed in the rear of the pulpit platform and occupy a niche between the two front towers.

The Sunday school department is in the rear of the main auditorium and separated from it by great sliding doors, which when open are entirely concealed in the partitions, and will have a clear opening between the two departments twenty-seven feet, six inches wide and twenty feet high.

The Sunday school department consists of an auditorium surrounded on three sides with two stories of class rooms, with a balcony in front of the second story of class rooms extending around three sides of the room. All the floors of the Sunday school department are on an incline and the whole so arranged that the occupants of the room will be in direct line of vision with the superintendent, and also the speaker on the pulpit when the great sliding doors are open.

The capacity of the Sunday school department is five hundred and fifty. When the Sunday school and main auditorium are thrown together for a large audience they will seat within easy hearing and seeing distance of the speaker from one thousand to twelve hundred persons.

In addition to the above rooms there is a library room adjacent to the west vestibule.

There is also a pastor's study on the first floor near the Sunday school department. This room is 15x18 with a mantel and grate in it, and bookcase for pastor's library. It has an independent outside entrance easily seen and approached from Wayne street and there is also direct communication with the interior of the building.

A large portion of the basement is finished for social purposes and consists of the following rooms: A reception room or parlor, 12x6x22, with a grate and mantel in it, and opening directly into the entrance vestibule and also into the social or banquet room. A banquet or social room, 32x36, and in connection with this room a large serving room, 15x18, fitted up completely with every convenience necessary for serving banquets. The banquet room will seat one hundred and fifteen at tables, or one hundred and ninety-two when used as a lecture room. There are also two toilet rooms fitted up complete, one for ladies and one for gentlemen.

All of the interior finish throughout the building is hard wood, with natural hard wood painters' finish. The ceilings are broken with ornamental work such as ribs, cornices, etc., and all inside finish and decoration is in Gothic style of architecture to correspond with the exterior of the building.

The building is heated throughout with hot air from two furnaces, and has two complete systems of ventilation, one for winter and one for summer.

In short the building is complete and harmonious in all its apartments and appointments.

Chas. Henry & Son, of Akron, O., were awarded the contract for getting out plans and specifications for this church.

PROJECT NOT NEW.

The project of building a church more commodious than the old building at Berry and Harrison streets was first taken up in 1883, during Rev. Walts' first pastorate. The property was offered to the government for the new federal building and negotiations had been about closed, when the First Presbyterian church, at the corner of Berry and Clinton streets, burned and that site was purchased instead.

The deal whereby the old building and site became the property of E. C. Rurode was consummated on October 16th, 1901, through Chester Scarlett. Within a short time after the sale had been ratified committees on building and site were appointed, and drawings were submitted early the following February for the new church. The plans of Charles Henry & Son, of Akron, Ohio, were chosen and a few weeks later the contract for the erection of the edifice was awarded to Dudley & Leffler, of Leipsic, Ohio.

The church site at Wayne and Lafayette streets was purchased from Miss Tower for $5,000 and the parsonage and property immediately adjoining was purchased for $7,000. Ground for the new building was broken on April 1st, 1902, and the work of construction has been pushed as rapidly as possible in the intervening time.

FRANK WILSON HELD TO CIRCUIT COURT

Accused Man is Believed to Have Prison Record--Other Police News.

Frank Wilson, charged with having brought stolen property into the state, was held to the circuit court under bonds of $500 after a preliminary hearing before Judge Dreibelbiss in police court. Wilson went to jail.

He was arrested at 11 o'clock Thursday night by Deputy Sheriffs Ryan and Huguenard as a result of what were deemed extremely suspicious circumstances in connection with a horse and buggy which Wilson had in his possession. The man leased a barn of Attorney A. E. Houk, 222 East Pontiac street, and soon after opened negotiations with both Mr. Houk and with a horse dealer named Webber for the sale of the animal.

It developed that Wilson had told a variety of stories concerning himself which did not agree with each other, and he could not explain to the satisfaction of the officers either how he reached the city, where he came from or how he came into possession of the property. The buggy and harness were sold to some person whose name Wilson says he does not know, after the outfit had been stored in Houk's barn. Wilson stated that his home was at Bellefountaine, Ohio, but when pressed for information to convince the officers of the truth of his statements, declined to enlighten them further.

Attorney A. E. Thomas, who has been retained by the accused man, made a strong fight for his client's freedom, but Judge Dreibelbiss held him to the circuit court. Wilson has admitted that some of the stories he told were fairy tales and the officers believe the man is really Ellsworth Cotterell, who is out on parole from the penitentiary at Menard, Ill., and wanted at Logansport for horse stealing.

WELCH BOUND OVER.

James Welch, eighteen years old, the grocery driver arrested by Detective Coling Friday morning upon a bestial charge, entered a plea of not guilty. Several witnesses were examined this morning and Welch was also held to the circuit court under bonds of $500. He went to jail. Welch was not represented in court by an attorney.

MINOR POLICE NOTES.

Patrol boxes Nos. 26, 46, 16, 243, 251, 71, 34 and 72 were knocked out by the electrical storm Friday afternoon. Repairs will be completed today and the entire system will be in service again.

Mr. Shaffer, 1313 Horace street, reports to the police that his son, Harry Shaffer, drew his salary from the Pennsylvania pay car May 17 and has not since been seen.

Rev. R. C. Jones, of Poneto, reports the loss of a Hamilton bank book, which the finder is requested to leave at the bank.

Officer Richardson picked up a stray horse and tied the animal in front of the Leikauf meat market yesterday. The horse had probably broken loose and strayed away.

NEGROES ROB CHAMBERMAID.

Indianapolis, Ind., May 23.—Miss Lulu Hadley, the chambermaid who refused to make Booker T. Washington's bed, was chloroformed and robbed by negroes early yesterday morning. The entire household was chloroformed and the rooms searched in the night. The robbery was not known till morning, when the family awakened dazed by the drug.

REFUSES TO BE DRIVEN AWAY.

Indianapolis, May 23.—A. F. Norton, who is running eight general stores in the Indiana natural gas belt on the plan "that Christ would run them," has brought a fight on himself by purchasing the stock of E. L. Winters at Hartford City and applying his peculiar methods to the sale of merchandise. Norton's reputation had preceded him, and when it was learned he had bought Winters' store the merchants determined to bake war upon him. Norton refused to employ union clerks, but hired several church officers, and at once began to advertise. Coffee, sugar and all staples were put down to lower prices than his competitors paid for their stocks at wholesale, and country produce, such as eggs, butter, chickens, feathers and the like, were sold at the same prices that he paid for them in goods. The labor unions instituted a systematic boycott, but the people flocked to the new store, despite the ban placed upon it. The owner of the building served notice that he would have to vacate, but Norton has rented another building and refuses to be driven away.

They are Ralph, Frank and Harvey Burns, of Chicago; Mrs. Lizzie Pearce, of Fairport, Mo.; Mrs. Lyman Rinehart, of East Liverpool, Ohio, and Charles Burns, who for several years was employed on an English merchant vessel and who left here in February last and has not since been heard from.

There will be a funeral service at the house, conducted by Rev. A. S. Preston, on Monday evening at 8 o'clock and on Tuesday morning the remains will be taken to Mt. Gilead for interment. Funeral services there will be conducted by Rev. J. A. Sprague, of Monroe, Ohio.

VANDERBILT WEDDING OPENS CONTROVERSY

Dr. Tristram Defends Action Granting License to the American.

London, May 23.—In a letter to the Times, occupying three columns, Dr. Tristrim, chancellor of the London diocese, today defends his action in granting the Vanderbilt-Rutherford marriage license by law and custom. Dr. Tristrim contends that he was obliged to grant Mr. Vanderbilt's application. With the chancellor's answer, the bishop's severe criticism forms the text for a lengthy editorial in the Times, which says Dr. Tristrim's argument opens up an important controversy between church and state. The Times maintains that Rev. R. H. Hadden's act in marrying Mr. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Rutherford was due solely to an error of judgment, which it hopes will not be copied by others of the English clergy and deprecates the "heavy moral censure which seemed to be implied by the bishop of London's language." The Times upholds Dr. Tristrim's contention that he had no right to interfere in a matter so dubious, whereon the house of lords and the house of commons had themselves legislated in direct contradiction of each other and "to the general moral sense of the public." The editorial continues: "It would seem a great hardship that by the sole fault of the guilty party an innocent person should be placed during the lifetime of that partner under one of the greatest and most trying disabilities that can be inflicted, a disability which may involve the greatest temptation, and where Christian opinion has been and is clearly divided. Even clergymen owe some deference to the laws of their country and still more to the moral sense of justice in the community."

LOOKING FOR HIS DAUGHTER.

(Toledo Times.)

William Whitten, an aged man from Punta Gorda, Fla., called upon Chief Detective Hall yesterday in search of information concerning his daughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Reed, who left Fort Wayne, Ind., on Tuesday for the express purpose of coming to Toledo. It seems that Mr. Whitten had made his long journey north with the intention of taking his daughter and her children home with him. He arrived in Fort Wayne just a day or two too late and thus far he has been unsuccessful in obtaining any clue to their whereabouts. Mr. Whitten says that Reed is a dry goods salesman, but that he had lost his position in Indiana and would doubtless endeavor to secure another in the same line of work in Toledo. For the present Mr. Whitten is stopping at the Mrchants' hotel, while the police department is doing all that is possible to aid him in his search for his daughter.

The Fort Wayne city directory does not give the names of Mr. and Mrs. Reed, and inquiry at the police station elicited the information that the police knew nothing of them.

THOS. MACFARLANE, Esq., F. R. S. C.,
Chief Analyst Inland Revenue Department.

Sir:—I beg herewith to submit a report of my work on Breakfast Foods.

These samples, as you are aware, were not collected and examined because of any suspicion regarding their wholesomeness or genuineness, for they were believed to be, as their analysis proves them to be, nutritious and palatable foods. In view, however, of the high prices at which they are sold, and of the extravagant claims put forth by their manufacturers as to their digestibility, nutrient power, etc., there exists a wide-spread demand for information as to what they really are, and how much of all the value claimed for them they really possess.

GRAPE-NUTS is away in the lead of every other food in the following respects: It has less moisture, less fat and less starch; it has more dextrin and is more soluble than any other food.

The first four are the most heavily advertised cooked foods in the world.

We will furnish any inquirer with the names by mail, but prefer to omit them in a public announcement of this kind.

In the sixth column, under Dextrin, observe GRAPE-NUTS percentage is more than NINE TIMES the small one, and nearly double the next best food.

DEXTRIN is the form of sugar that the starch part of grain is turned into before it can be digested. DEXTRIN IS THE PART THAT MAKES HUMAN ENERGY.

The four blank spaces in this column showing no Dextrin whatever, apply to that number of uncooked foods.

DON'T FORGET Grape-Nuts has about double the energy-producing power of any food on earth.

IN THE LAST COLUMN

Is shown the percentage of the food that is ready for IMMEDIATE DIGESTION.

Grape-Nuts has over sixteen times the amount of digestible food as the least one, and about two-thirds more than the next best food made.

Scientifically made food works wonders for the users.

Six years ago GRAPE-NUTS started to supply the public with a scientific food, fully and correctly cooked at the factory, and made to supply the certain elements needed in making the gray substance in the brain and nerve centers, and to supply human energy, while at the same time furnish

A food so easy of digestion that an Infant's Stomach will handle it without question.

The public made

Grape-Nuts

A tremendous success

And this started the long procession of followers, whose facetious names, odd movements and funny pictures have brought more or less derision upon them, for the public mind is shrewd to understand that imitators are fundamentally ignorant of food value, and simply "cook up" something, and hire an advertiser to "COPY POST AS NEAR AS YOU CAN."

But the analysis of government and other prominent chemists turns light on the question, and the public can profit thereby.

We believe these cereal foods are practically all cleanly. But their makers do not understand how to produce a food with anything like the genuine food value of Gas, with or without meters, but nevertheless abundant gas, is what the people of Fort Wayne want, expect and demand.

Colonel Watterson does not come promptly to the front for his leg in the great wardance about Grover Cleveland. The colonel should be ready to relay Mr. Bryan whenever that active gentleman leaves off.

The great anxiety of Col. Curtis Jett to hike back to Breathett county for trial is not hard to understand. In that hospitable section of Kentucky justice abides in the hip pocket of the man who knows how to draw his six-shooter quickets and aim truest.

Count Cassini, the Russian ambassador to this country, has not greatly altered the public view of the outrages in Kishineff by his essayed explanation of the cause. To begin with, much that he asserted has been proved to be untrue, while the atrocious affair itself is understood very well to be just what it was—a fanatical butchery inspired by the general example of Russia herself in systematic and persistent persecution of the Jews.

The Osservatore Romano, the official organ of the vatican, has been publishing a series of articles on the importance of Bible study, in which it says: "The reading of the Holy Scriptures is the best means for the support of the true and genuine apostolic office, and is entirely adapted to awaken in the people a truly Christian knowledge and conscience, which can then be perverted by nobody. What an inestimable blessing it would be if every Christian family would be assembled daily and read a chapter from the Gospels! In this way the divine language of the Book, together with its sublime simplicity, would become common property; the image of Jesus Christ would become clearer and more deeply impressed on the hearts of the people; a thorough religious training would be imparted on all sides, and in this way the most dangerous results of ignorance and indifference would be removed. If it would only be made possible to have this constant and steady reading of the Scriptures introduced into many families, as is the case in a number of countries in northern Europe, what an immense gain this would be for the church and the faithful!"

The dedication tomorrow by the congregation of the old Berry street Methodist Episcopal church of the splendid new house of worship to be known hereafter as the First Methodist church, marks another epoch in the grand history of this pioneer religious organization. What has been known for nearly three-quarters of a century as the Berry street church was in the first place the germination of Methodism in Fort Wayne, and for the matter of that in Northern Indiana. It sprang up in what was then almost a wilderness. It flourished, as Methodism always has wherever planted, and in good time drew unto itself strength, flourished in spite of the tribulations and discouragements to be encountered in a new land and became the parent of other churches here and in the great new empire of which Fort Wayne is the center. Here, as elsewhere, during the past two centuries, the pioneers of Methodism were almost contemporaneous with the pioneers of the soil. As the hardy husbandman with ax and plow fell to in his sturdy battle with wild nature, so the rugged and fearless pathfinders of the militant church of Wesley penetrated the wilderness to prepare the ground and sow the seed of the gospel. It was a strenuous work and men of rugged, and sometimes rough nature, were the chosen instruments of the Lord. But rough though some of them were, the spirit that was in them was the same that animated the early fathers of the Christian church. Their energy tireless, their courage indomitable and their faith sublime, they pushed into the wilderness to preach and teach and rear the church wherever men could be found to hear their message and be brought to the fold. The part the old Berry street church bore in the pioneer movement of Methodism in Northern Indiana is written in the history of this section. The fruits of its work are seen in half a dozen Methodist congregations in Fort Wayne and in every city, town and hamlet and at every cross-roads in this part of the state, where a Methodist church rears heavenward its spire. It is not to be said that this splendid old congregation itself did all this, but it did much of it and was the beginning of it all. The occasion tomorrow should be one to stir the pride of the folk of the old Berry street church and of all Methodists in Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana. They all have a relation to the auspicious event.

THE CRACKS WILL BE HERE.

Managers of the Corner Rod and Gun club shooting tournament to be held here Wednesday and Thursday of next week have received notice that some of the best shots in the country will be here for the occasion. The list of those who have signified that they will attend embraces Rolla Hikes, Charles Lamb, of Attica; Hugh Clark, of Wabash; James L. Head, of Peru; E. C. Fort, C. W. Phellis, Charles Jones, Fred Foster, Fred Lord and a number of others.

LONDON BUSSES

And an American Food.

There is probably no food on earth that could sustain a woman 60 years old under the following circumstances except Grape-Nuts.

For four months she laid ill from partial paralysis brought on by the wrong kind of food ruining stomach and then affecting the nervous system. During the time she was getting well the physicians fed her on Grape-Nuts.

She says: "My diet consisted of two teaspoonfuls of Grape-Nuts and some cream each meal for two months. Then increased to two dessert spoonfuls and to show how it sustains nature, I never lost 5 lbs. in the whole four months. I got well slowly and am now in prime health and in the last 3 months have been in 10 foreign countries. I carry Grape-Nuts everywhere with me.

"In London I saw the big Grape-Nuts signs on the "busses" all about. Considering how near death I was and how well I am now through good food alone and that I am 60 years old, my friends look upon my recovery as marvelous." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

ECONOMY MAKES GAS CHEAP FUEL

Company Maintains Use of Meters Will Not Increase the Cost of Gas.

AT WORK ON ORDINANCE

Twenty-Five Cents Per Thousand Feet Likely to be the New Rate.

As a preface to the introduction of a gas ordinance in the city council the Fort Wayne Gas company is making preparations to demonstrate that with proper appliances and the exercise of ordinary economy gas can be burned with as little cost through a meter as under a flat rate.

With this object in view Henry C. Paul, the assistant to the president, is having placed in the offices of the company a number of gas ranges which will be connected with meters and a close account kept to ascertain accurately the actual cost of consumption under the ordinance to be presented to the council.

The directors of the company have insisted that with power to control the supply which they claim passed out of their hands with the introduction of bored mixers and rubber tubes, that gas can be burned under a meter ordinance, better results can be obtained and a more satisfactory relation established between the company and its patrons by the use of meters.

WILL URGE ECONOMY.

The supply of natural gas, it is generally conceded, is almost exhausted, and the efforts of the company will be in the direction of educating the people in the use of gas so that when it becomes necessary to substitute the manufactured article it can be used without excessive cost. The ranges to be exhibited at the gas offices are of two sizes and are arranged with burners under each of the holes at the top, one for the oven and another for a water tank. Each portion of the stove can be heated separately and this is the first step in economizing.

The manufacturers claim that combustion in these ranges is perfect and that this allows a maximum amount of heat from every foot of gas consumed and herein lies another great saving. Tests heretofore made show that the large ranges consume fifteen feet of gas an hour, the small ones ten, two burners under the hot plate twenty-five feet an hour and the burner under a thirty gallon tank will heat the water contained with the consumption of thirty-five feet of gas and less than an hour will be necessary to do the work.

NO RENT FOR METERS.

The cost can not, of course, be estimated until the council has fixed the meter rate, but it has been determined by the board of public works that no matter what the outcome of the attempt to secure a meter ordinance may be, there will be no clause allowing the company to charge rentals for the use of the meters.

Mr. Paul stated yesterday that the company does not propose to go into the stove business in competition with the local merchants, but that, as it will be a great hardship for the poorer families to be compelled to dispose of their present cooking stoves and that many of them will not be in a position to pay cash, the company will supply the stoves at cost, and to such as are compelled to pay for them in small installments the privilege of doing so will be allowed by the company. The introduction of modern appliances will mean a greatly increased volume of business for local merchants later on and the step taken by the gas company is, as stated, for the purpose of educating the masses in the proper use of the fuel.

HELD A CONFERENCE.

A conference was held in the office of the board of public works yesterday between the members of the board and City Attorney Shambaugh, representing the city, and Mr. Paul, J. Max Mofmann and Attorney J. M. Barrett, representing the gas company. The discussion was informal and the point was made by the city that it would be better to amend the present franchise held by the company than to formulate a new one. Mr. Barrett believes that the present ordinance can be changed so as to make it mandatory, and after this had been canvassed the matter was left to the city attorney. The preamble will be so changed as to retain any of the rights of the consumers if this course is pursued.

Frank Cutshall, private secretary to Mr. Paul, presented figures obtained from other cities in which the meters are in use and the average rate is 25 cents per thousand, even in Muncie, which is the center of the gas belt. This rate was decided upon by the board as about correct and it was fixed in the new ordinance. As it will be necessary to make a great many changes in order to introduce meters, and as great expense will be involved, Mr. Paul asked that the contract be submitted to the city council as soon as possible, and the matter may be taken up at the next regular meeting on Tuesday night.

CATARRH IS CURABLE

Meyer Bros. Co. guarantee to Cure Worst Case or Will Refund Money.

The average person with catarrh has suffered for years and finally reached the conclusion that nothing can cure it. Until the discovery of Hyomei, this belief was undoubtedly correct.

Hyomei has made so many cures of chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, that it is today recognized as a specific for this disease. It cures by a new principle, impregnating the air you breathe with healing balsams, and not by pills, drugs or stomach dosing. People who have suffered with catarrh since childhood have been cured completely by this scientific remedy.

The Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of a neat inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. Extra bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50c. It is the most economical of all remedies and is the only one that is based upon Nature's method of curing diseases of the respiratory organs.

Meyer Bros. Co. has seen such remarkable results following the use of Hyomei that they extend an invitation to the worst cases of catarrh in Fort Wayne and vicinity to call at their store and obtain a Hyomei outfit with the distinct understanding that it will be absolutely free unless it effects a cure. This remarkable and unusual offer is the strongest proof that can be given of Hyomei's power to cure catarrh.

AERIAL ACT.

Extraordinary Exponents of Artistic Gymnastics.

There has never been a better nor a truer title for any kind of a troupe than that of the famous gymnasts with the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Brothers Shows and called "The Ryan and Zorella Troupe," the Greatest Aerial Act on Earth. The extraordinary performance given by this wonderful group of men and women has never been approached before. It is the first time in the history of the circus that so many genuine expert aerialists have ever been simultaneously in the air, and when it is remembered that each of these seven men and women are stars of the very highest magnitude in the arenic firmament, and are the union of the three greatest aerial troupes ever known in this country, some idea of the remarkable feats may be imagined. They will prove one of the most pleasing features ever seen with any show, and to those who are fond of perilous feats in mid-air they will furnish a most agreeable topic for conversation after you have recovered from the stunning amazement their wonderful performances will cause. They will be seen here when those great shows exhibit here on Saturday, June 6.

Rolling Mill Contracts are Complete, and Work Will Begin at Once.

Friday evening marked the successful completion of the contracts for the location of a big rolling mill in Fort Wayne, and work will begin at once upon the erection of buildings and the removal of the plant from Muskegon, Mich., to this city.

W. I. Moody, president of the rolling mill company, arrived from Chicago yesterday, accompanied by Col. John S. Cooper, the company's attorney, and the contracts were completed at a meeting held in the rooms of the Commercial club. Within a very few days the formal organization of the new company and the election of officers will occur.

The contracts call for the erection of two buildings, one 350x60 feet and the other 150x225 feet in size. Of the 400 operatives of the mill only about 25 per cent can be secured in Fort Wayne. The others are skilled laborers and must come from other points. The capacity of the mill will be 100 tons of finished iron daily.

NEW SCIENTIFIC PROCESS.

A Preparation Discovered That Will Destroy the Dandruff Germ.

For some time it has been known that dandruff is caused by a germ that digs up the scalp into little white flakes, and by sapping the vitality of the hair at the root, causes falling hair, and, of course, finally baldness. For years there have been all kinds of hair stimulants and scalp tonics on the market, but there has been no permanent cure for dandruff until the discovery of the preparation called Newbro's Herpicide, which destroys the dandruff germ. Destroy the cause, the effect will cease to exist. Kill the dandruff germ and you'll have no dandruff, no itching scalp, no falling hair.

O. Fred Lindstrom, Past Grand Master Independent Order of Odd Fellows, Past Chancellor Twin City Lodge, No. 63, Knights of Pythias, also Past Chief Patriarch, Ridgely Encampment, No. 22, writes from 1923 University Ave, St. Paul, Minn.

"Peruna has my hearty endorsement. There is no medicine I know of which can compare with it. I contracted a severe cold several years ago, which from neglect developed into urinary trouble, and threatened Bright's disease. As one of my friends was cured of Bright's disease through the use of Peruna I thought I would try it also, and used it faithfully for three and one-half months, when my health was perfect once more. I have never had any trouble since, and therefore think it is but just to give it unlimited praise."—O. Fred Lindstrom.

Catarrhal inflammation of the mucous lining of the kidneys, also called "Bright's disease," maybe either acute or chronic. The acute form produces symptoms of such prominence that the serious nature of the disease is at once suspected, but the chronic variety may come on so gradually and insidiously that its presence is not suspected until after it has fastened itself thoroughly upon its victim.

At the appearance of the first symptom Peruna should be taken. This remedy strikes at once at the very root of the disease.

WOMAN'S GENTLE NATURE CALLS FOR GENTLE TREATMENT

Delicately formed and gently reared, women will find, in all the seasons of their lives, as maidens, wives, or mothers, that the one simple, wholesome remedy which acts gently and pleasantly and naturally, and which may be used with truly beneficial effects, under any conditions, when the system needs a laxative, is—Syrup of Figs. It is well known to be a simple combination of the laxative and carminative principles of plants with pleasant, aromatic liquids, which are agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system when its gentle cleansing is desired.

Many of the ills from which women suffer are of a transient nature and do not come, from any organic trouble and it is pleasant to know that they yield so promptly to the beneficial effects of Syrup of Figs, but when anything more than a laxative is needed it is best to consult the family physician and to avoid the old-time cathartics and loudly advertised nostrums of the present day. When one needs only to remove the strain, the torpor, the congestion, or similar ills, which attend upon a constipated condition of the system, use the true and gentle remedy—Syrup of Figs—and enjoy freedom from the depression, the aches and pains, colds and headaches, which are due to inactivity of the bowels.

Only those who buy the genuine Syrup of Figs can hope to get its beneficial effects and as a guarantee of the excellence of the remedy the full name of the company—California Fig Syrup Co.—is printed on the front of every package and without it any preparation offered as Syrup of Figs is fraudulent and should be declined. To those who know the quality of this excellent laxative, the offer of any substitute, when Syrup of Figs is called for, is always resented by a transfer of patronage to some first-class drug establishment, where they do not recommend, nor sell false brands, nor imitation remedies. The genuine article may be bought of all reliable druggists everywhere at 50 cents per bottle.

WILL HONOR THE SOLDIER DEAD

Official Program Issued for Memorial Services in Fort Wayne

WILL BEGIN TOMORROW

Sermon at Christ's Lutheran Church and Temple Theater --Decoration Saturday.

Fort Wayne's annual memorial service in honor of her soldier dead will begin tomorrow morning with a sermon at Christ's Lutheran church which will be delivered by Rev. L. J. Motschman, the pastor. The service will begin at 10:30 o'clock and while none of the military organizations will attend in a body the committees in charge expect a large attendance of the members of the G. A. R. and of the Sons of Veterans.

Programs for the celebration of the day have for several years been in charge of the latter organization and as each succeeding year passes the members demonstrate more clearly that the spirit of reverence for those whose lives were sacrificed for the preservation of the union and those who, laden with the honor that comes of meritorious service, have passed away since the strife of civil war was ended, is still fresh in the memories of their companions in arms and their sons.

This year the services will be on a scale commensurate with the importance of the occasion and the members of Capt. James B. White camp No. 71, Sons of Veterans, who have labored so tirelessly for the success of the undertaking, have presented a program that promises to add another laurel to those already won.

GORKI PUTS BLAME ON RUSSIAN SOCIETY

Declares it Responsible for the Horrible Massacre at Kishineff.

Maxim Gorki, the Russian novelist, recently wrote an article on the Kishineff massacres for a Nidji Novgorod newspaper; the censor refused to allow its publication. Gorki then sent the article which follows to the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Frankfort Kleine Presse, which printed it yesterday.

BY MAXIM GORKI

(By the Associated Press.)

Berlin, May 23.—Russia has been disgraced more and more frequently of recent years by dark deeds, but the most disgraceful of all is the horrible Jewish massacre at Kishineff, which has awakened our horror, shame and indignation. People who regard themselves as Christians, who claim to believe in God's mercy and sympathy—these people on the day consecrated to the resurrection of their God from the dead occupy the time in murdering children and aged people, ravishing the women and martyring the men of the race which gave them Christ.

WHERE THE BLAME LIES.

Who bears the blame of this base crime, which will remain on us like a bloody blot for ages? We shall be unable to wash this blot from the sad history of our dark country. It would be unjust and too simple to condemn the mob. The latter was merely the hand which was guided by a corrupt conscience, driving it to murder and robbery. For it is well known that the mob at Kishineff was led by a man of cultivated society. But cultivated society in Russia is really much worse than the people, who are goaded by their sad life and blinded and enthralled by the artificial darkness created around them. The cultivated classes are a crowd of cowardly slaves, without feeling of personal dignity, ready to accept every lie to save their ease and comfort; a weak and lawless element almost without conscience and without shame, in spite of its elegant exterior.

Cultivated society is not less guilty of the disgraceful and horrible deeds committed at Kishineff than the actual murderers and ravishers. Its members' guilt consisted in not merely not protecting the victims, but that they rejoiced over the murders; it consists chiefly in committing themselves for long years to be corrupted by man haters and persons who have long enjoyed the disgusting glory of being the lackeys of power and glorifiers of lies like the editor of the Bessaryetz, of Kishineff, and other publicists. Those are the real authors of the disgraceful and awful crime of Kishineff.

INSTIGATORS OF MURDER.

To all the shameful names hitherto given to these repulsive men must be added another, and the well deserved one of "instigators of village murder." These hypocrites, with the name of God on their lips, who preach in Russian society hatred of the Jews, Armenians and Finns, today heap base and cowardly calumnies upon the corpses of those killed through their influence, and they shamelessly continue their hateful work of poisoning the mind and feeling of the weak-willed Russian society.

Shame upon their wicked heads! May the fire of conscience consume their decayed hearts, covetous only of lackeylike honors and slavishly obsequious to power!

It is now the duty of Russian society, that is not yet wholly ruined by these bandits, to prove that it is not identified with these instigators of pillage and murder. Russian society must clear its conscience of part of the shame and disgrace by helping the orphaned and desolated Jews and assisting those members of the race which has given to the world many really great men, and which still continues to produce teachers of truth and beauty in spite of its oppressed condition in the world.

Come, therefore, all who do not want themselves to be regarded as the lackeys of the lackeys, and who still retain their self-respect; come and help the Jews.

Bed

Ridden From Severe Heart Trouble.

Pale, Weak and Constantly Tired.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure Cured Me.

"I write to thank you for the cure I received from your remedies. When I began taking your medicine I was confined to my bed most of the time. Our best home doctors told me there was no cure for me on account of the weak condition of my heart. I was pale and weak, constantly tired, had no appetite and could not sleep. I was exceedingly nervous and easily irritated in consequence. At last I began taking as a last resort, Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure together with Dr. Miles' Wine of Sarsaparilla. I was helped from the start and I cannot say enough in praise of these wonderful remedies. I can truthfully say they are the best medicines I ever took. They cured me and I am now able to work on the farm every day. I gladly recommend your remedies to all sufferers."—Wm. B. Campbell, Mantorville, Minn.

"For years I could not turn my head to the right but it caused great pain in the back of my neck and it seemed at times my head would burst with pain. I would sometimes lie down, and could not get up without help my neck was so stiff. About once a week I would have to go to bed with a very severe headache. By using one of Dr. Miles' Nerve Plasters on my neck and occasionally using the Anti-Pain Pills, which always relieved the headache instantly, I completely overcame my trouble, and both headache and stiffness have disappeared."—Miss Lucy Billows, Cleveland, Ohio.

ENFORCING NEW LAW AGAINST THE ALIENS

Venezuela Will Drive All Foreigners Out if Mesaure Be Not Modified.

Willemstadt, Island of Curacoa, May 23.—The president of the state of Maracaibo, Venezuela, and the governor of Caracas have tried to enforce the new law against foreigners, obliging them to recognize only the Venezuelan tribunals for the adjustment of their claims and compelling them to waive their rights to claim damages for robbery or pillage perpetrated by government or revolutionary troops, and enforcing other vexatious measures under penalty of immediate expulsion. These measures were enforced against British, German, Italian, Dutch, Spanish and French citizens. When their respective legations learned of the fact they sent orders to their consuls not to comply with the demands of the local authorities as the new law was contrary to existing treaties. The ministers of the powers also called on Senor Urbaneja, the minister of foreign affairs, and protested against the action taken. Senor Urbaneja promised that orders would be issued to suspend the enforcement of the new law. United States citizens were not molested. If the law is enforced later complications with the powers will arise and it is believed that more than 40,000 of the 60,000 foreigners actually residing in Venezuela will leave the country.

LONG STRIKE IS SETTLED.

New York, May 23.—John McNeill, grand president and organizer of the Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Shipbuilders of America, in a statement issued today, says that the strike of the boilermakers on the Union Pacific, inaugurated on June 10, 1902, has been settled, the men being granted a substantial increase in wages and other questions arranged satisfactorily to both parties. All the men now out are to return to work. The men struck for an increase in wages and the establishment of shop rules. A sympathetic strike was ordered on the Southern Pacific, when, through the influence of E. H. Harriman, a conference was arranged and conducted in this city during the last few days. Mr. McNeill has gone to Pittsburg to hold a conference with the employers of boilermakers in that city, looking to the settlement of the difficulties existing there.

LYNCHING IS THREATENED.

Lawrenceburg, Ind., May 23.—Posses with bloodhounds are scouring the country around Manchester for a negro who waylaid and assaulted Martin Kaiser and his daughter, Rose, aged 17 years, near Manchester Thursday night.

Kaiser was found near the Big Four tracks early yesterday orning in an unconscious condition. After regaining consciousness Kaiser said a negro had assaulted him with a club and carried his daughter into the woods near by. The girl's hat and umbrella were found near Tanner's creek today and it is believed her body was thrown into the creek by the negro after he had assaulted and murdered her. Kaiser, who is 70 years of age, is in a critical condition and not expected to live. Kaiser and his daughter had been to the Catholic church at Yorkville to attend Ascension day services. They passed through Manchester shortly after 7 o'clock that evening and the attack must have taken place soon after. A colored man seen near Manchester Thursday afternoon is suspected. Excitement is at fever heat and if the guilty man is apprehended he probably will be lynched.

THE FIRSTBORN.

Why is it that the firstborn child is so often the healthiest of a family of children? The reason seems to suggest itself. As child follows child the mother has less and less vitality; often not enough for herself and none, therefore, for her child.

Expectant mothers who use Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription find that it keeps them in vigorous health. They eat well, sleep well and are not nervous. When baby comes its advent is practically painless and the mother is made happy by the birth of a healthy child. If you would be a healthy mother of healthy children use "Favorite Prescription."

"I will be very glad to say a few words for Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Mrs. P. S. Douglas, of Mansonville, Brome Co., Quebec. "During the first four months, when I looked forward to becoming a mother, I suffered very much from nausea and vomiting, and I felt so terribly sick I could scarcely eat or drink anything. I hated all kinds of food. At this time I wrote to Dr. Pierce, and he told me to get his 'Favorite Prescription' and a bottle of 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I got a bottle of each, and when I had taken them a few days, I felt much better, and when I had taken hardly three parts of each bottle I felt well and could eat as well as any one, and could do my work without any trouble (I could not do anything before). I feel very thankful to Dr. Pierce for his medicine, and I tell all who tell me they are sick, to get these medicines, or write to Dr. Pierce."

Those who suffer from chronic diseases are invited to consult Dr. Pierce, by letter, free. All correspondence strictly private. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Day on Wall Street.

New York, May 23.—The opening stock market was dull and hesitating in tone. The principal active stocks showed slight declines, but there was a sprinkling of gains. Pennsylvania and New York Central opened down a shade and then rallied to a shade over last night.

Professional operators promptly sold the market freely on the news of further gold shipments to Argentina on Monday, increasing the outgo to that point to $2,250,000. The selling was very general and the rapid decline in the U. S. Steel stocks had a depressing influence on the general trading. U. S. Steel preferred dropped 1⅝. Losses of 1 to 1⅝ were scored by St. Paul, Atchison, Southern Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Norfolk and Western, Wheeling and Lake Erie, Delaware and Hudson, Reading, Erie first and second preferred, U. S. Steel, Smelting, Brooklyn Transit, Chicago Terminal preferred and Tennessee Coal. Lackawanna lost 1⅞ and Minneapolis and St. Louis 2⅛.

A steady stream of liquidation continued to pour upon the market. The violent decline in St. Paul and the free selling of U. S. Steel stocks on rumors of closing down of the Chicago plants overcame the resistance at the few firm points, notably Pennsylvania. That stock yielded 2. St. Paul's extreme decline was 3½. The list generally was 1 to 2 points lower than last night. Covering by shorts on the bank statement caused a momentary check to the decline, but later prices were lower. Minneapolis and St. Louis dropped 6⅛. In the late dealings losses reached 2 points or over in Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, Atchison, Missouri Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated Copper and other less prominent stocks.

The closing was very active and weak, at about the lowest.

JUDGE BLUSHED AND DECLINED THE JOB

Municipal Court Jurist Passes Up Chance to Perform Marriage Ceremony.

Judge R. B. Dreibelbiss, of the municipal court, today declined a request to perform a marriage ceremony. The incident occurred in the office of the county clerk this afternoon.

Michael H. Homrick and Elizabeth Dehoff, both of Jackson township, arrived in the city today determined to be united in the bonds of matrimony, and they made their wishes known to Deputy Clerk John Belot. That official issued the license, and the groom inquired for a judicial officer just at the moment that Judge Dreibelbiss entered the room.

Attaches of the office have been asserting that they would procure an engagement of this character for Judge Dreibelbiss, who has managed to evade officiating as a nuptial knotter since he assumed the bench. He was called into the consultation and informed that the parties desired that he officiate at the marriage ceremony. Blushing to a deep crimson, the judge replied that other engagements would prevent him from tying the nuptial knot.

Justice Tancey, who has conquered his inherent bashfulness by long years upon the bench, was summoned to the clerk's office at this juncture. The marriage occurred in the clerk's private office, and witnesses say Justice Tancey tied the knot without the remotest indication of a blush.

SLIGHT DECREASE IN BUSINESS

The Usual Summer Lull in Express Movement is Now Approaching

CARNIVAL DATES FIXED

Commences Tuesday, Juiy 28, and Closes on Night of August 1.

As the summer months approach the east and west movement of express goods grows lighter as usual and as a result the Pennsylvania has decided to run only one section of westbound train No. 19. The taking off of the second section will necessitate a reassignment of some crews, the men affected being Conductors Peter Travis, M. W. Long, Ed Nulf and A. Miller, and Engineers M. O'Brien, W. Schwartz, E. O. Bradley, C. C. Craig, G. W. Kensill, B. F. Thompson, J. Leeper and E. Jamey. These men took this train westward over divisions C and D and fast freight trains eastward. It is likely that they will now have through freight train runs in both directions.

Decide Upon a Date.

The general committee of the Railway Carnival and Street Fair association, of which Engineer G. W. Erwin is the secretary, has settled the matter of date and announces that the carnival will commence on Tuesday morning, July 28, and continue until and including Saturday, Aug. 1. As will be seen by the following program, most of the specified time is devoted to street exhibitions, thereby bringing the crowd in attendance right to the business portion of the city and giving the merchants the benefit of the extra trade that will result from it. The railway organizations and the men back of this enterprise have engineered other public events in this city so successfully that the people have great confidence in their promise to make this event the greatest one of its kind ever given in the state. The accompanying program is merely an outline of a more definite one to be issued later, but it will give the reader an idea of what it will be. It is as follows:

Tuesday, July 28.—Railroad men's parade. Music by eight bands. Speaking by grand lodge officers, representing the B. R. T., B. L. F., O. R. C. and B. L. E.

Wednesday, July 29.—Business men's day. Music by bands. Address by Governor Durbin and local merchants.

Thursday, July 30.—Band tournament. Parade by twenty-five bands. Speaking by mayors of some of our leading cities.

Friday, July 31.—General labor day. Parade by all labor organizations. Address by President Mitchell.

Saturday, Aug. 1.—Centlivre park. Head-on collision between two large engines. Amateur horse racing. Fiddlers' contest. Amusements of various kinds.

Fireman Injured.

J. M. Smurr, of 2323 Miner street and a stationary fireman at the Wabash shops, was struck on the hand by a piece of coal this morning. The bones of the member were dislocated and the accident will disable the fireman for several days. Dr. M. F. Porter attended him.

J. H. Fitzgerald, a Pennsylvania fireman, fell yesterday and cut a long and deep gash in his thigh. Dr. Stemen dressed the wounded limb. B. W. Fitzpatrick had a hand injured by getting it between parts of an engine, and T. W. Hugo was scalded about the face and breast by the packing of an engine blowing out and allowing the steam to strike him. Both of these men are employed in the Pennsylvania shops.

F. P. Rosabaum, a laborer in Foreman Martin Noll's gang at the Pittsburg shops, had a foot sprained yesterday by jumping from a flat car.

Wedding Anniversary.

There was a jolly crowd at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Merz, 511 Holman street, last night, the occasion being the celebration of the wedding anniversary of that popular couple. All of their children and grandchildren were there and in addition there were a number of friends with whom the host and hostess have been on intimate terms for nearly a third of a century. Games and social chat and a grand supper served to make the time fly rapidly and pleasantly. Mr. and Mrs. Merz received a good many presents to remind them of the anniversary. Mr. Merz is a cabinetmaker and has worked in the Pennsylvania shops ever since October, 1879. He is 69 years old and will soon be retired by the rule which does not permit employes to work there after they have arrived at the age of 70. He is quite active for one of his age and looks like a man much younger.

Shipping Dynamo Machinery.

The shipping department of the Fort Wayne Electric works was busy today, packing and loading machinery and supplies. Among the shipments were a carload, including a 1,600-light dynamo and a lot of arc lamps, to Kansas City, where the company is to equip Woodlawn park with lights. A 2,000-light dynamo for the same place will be shipped early next week. A 1,500-light generator was also shipped to Columbus, Kan.; a twelve-horse power motor to Pocahontas, Va., and a small motor to Muskegon, Mich.

Was a Small Excursion Party.

The excursion of the traveling men to Rome City this morning did not prove to be the brilliant affair, in a numerical way, that it promised a few days ago. There were less than 100 in the party, and ladies outnumbered the gentlemen two to one. It seems that a few days ago a misunderstanding arose between the salesmen and the jobbers and the partial failure of the excursion was due to this difference. Conductor N. J. Murphy and Engineer A. P. Garrison had charge of the special train, which left the city at 7:30 this morning.

Old Shopman Resigns.

Christian Bruns will resign his position at the Pittsburg blacksmith shop this evening and Monday morning he will take a position at the forge in the Western Gas Construction company's works. Mr. Bruns has been employed at the Pittsburg shops ever since October, 1878, and he is one of the best known and most competent workmen in that shop. His resignation will be a matter for regret by all of the men employed there. The change is made because of the increase in wages it affords.

Sent for Dr. Dinnen.

President H. H. Canniff, of the Nickel Plate, sent his car here this morning for the accommodation of Dr. and Mrs. J. M. Dinnen, who will occupy it tonight on their way to Cleveland, leaving on train 6 at midnight. Dr. Dinnen performed a surgical operation upon Mrs. Canniff two weeks ago and makes occasional visits to Cleveland to see her. Mr. Canniff's private car is always at the doctor's disposal on such occasions and it has been sent here this time for that purpose.

Death of Dennis Hayes.

Engineer Neal Hayes, of the Pittsburg, has returned from Columbus, Wis., where he was called several days ago by the sickness of his father, Dennis Hayes, who died soon after the arrival of his son. The deceased was 80 years old and was taken sick while on a visit with his son, J. C. Hayes, the proprietor of a hotel in Columbus. He spent two years in this city with his son, Neal, some time ago and has a number of friends here who will be pained to learn of his death.

Will Celebrate Tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Meyer, of 1418 East Lewis street, will celebrate their china wedding at their pleasant home tomorrow and in the celebration they will be assisted by a number of relatives and a host of friends. This jolly couple are fine entertainers and the affair tomorrow will be pleasant to all who participate in it. Mr. Meyer is a boilermaker at the Bass shops.

A New Man at Pay Desk.

The Wabash pay car arrived in the city at noon today and will remain here until Monday morning, at 7 o'clock. Samuel M. Reed has charge of it on this trip, the regular paymaster, A. M. Harrison, having died, as recorded in these columns a few days ago.

Industrial Notes.

The Nickel Plate pay car was here yesterday.

John Beckner resigned his position at the Fort Wayne Electric works this morning. He is a moulder.

Frank Closs, of the Fort Wayne Electric works, has gone to Canton, Ohio, to repair an armature.

Machinist Fitzpatrick, of the Pittsburg shops, went to Chicago this morning for a Sunday visit with friends.

W. C. A. Henry, assistant motive power superintendent of the Pennsylvania, has returned from a business trip to Erie.

Philip Lacey, of Chicago, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Zollars, of 920 Erie street. Mr. Zollars is employed at the Pennsylvania shops.

The Bass company this morning shipped a 150-horse power boiler to the Hammond Illuminating company, at Hammond, Ind.

J. H. Arnold, a Pennsylvania car builder, went to Chicago this morning to receive treatment from a specialist for an affection of the ears.

A carload of brick arrived at the Wabash shops last evening and this morning the masons resumed the work of building the walls for the new shop.

Mrs. I. Wise, wife of the foreman of the tank department of the Pennsylvania shops, was called to Mansfield, Ohio, this morning, by a telegram informing her of the death of a relative.

W. F. Krudop, T. R. Mueller and C. J. Geiger, Pittsburg shopmen, are off duty, the former on account of sickness and the two last named on account of private business.

Jacob W. Reiber, clerk for General Foreman H. T. Hogan, of the Pennsylvania machine shop, is in Chicago, combining business and pleasure. He will be at his office desk as usual Monday morning.

Engineer Andy Sullivan, of the Wabash, and his wife, have gone to Columbus, Ohio, where they will tomorrow witness the confirmation ceremonies which will make their daughter a Sister of Charity.

Brakeman Jack Fromuth, of the Pittsburg, has taken a two weeks' vacation and will leave early next week, with his wife, for St. Paul, where they will visit the lady's parents and other relatives.

Charles Mordaugh, representing the passenger department of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, says the company has taken up the colonization of South Dakota and is spending a good deal of money in the enterprise.

Felix Collucia, the Italian who lost a leg at Plymouth two weeks ago, by falling from a Pennsylvania work train, and who is now in St. Joseph hospital, has a wife and three children in Italy.

An error in this paper yesterday made it appear that William Rehling had resigned his position at the Fort Wayne Electric works. Mr. Rehling is foreman of the commutator department, is a good man for the position and has no intention of resigning.

The three frame houses belonging to Truckman Brown, on Holman street, have been removed to Eliza street, where they are being fitted up for occupancy. The ground vacated on Holman street will be occupied by a big barn later in the season.

Railway officials complain of the scarcity of bright young stenographers who have the ability to take right hold of the work. Nearly all of the leading railway officials were once stenographers and worked their way through a series of positions until they reached their present positions.

Carl Zurmuhlen, machinist at the Wabash shops, has taken a lay off and gone to Chicago. His shopmates say that he has gone there to be married, but they have made a similar prophesy so often and it failed that it is quite likely they are on the wrong track again.

Pittsburg Engineer Ben Skinner and Fireman Mueller went to Davis this morning for a day's fishing. Last Saturday Mr. Skinner caught a dozen nice pike at that place. Conductor Kinsey Kimmell and his son have also gone fishing. They are on a lake near Pierceton.

While waiting for the pay car at 11 o'clock this morning, Harry Loller, a machinist employed in the night gang at the Wabash shops, was overcome by the heat and fell in a faint at the watch shanty on Fairfield avenue. He soon revived, however, and was able to go to his home.

William Davis, foreman of the Pennsylvania freight house at Indianapolis, is in the city for a Sunday visit with his son, Gregg Davis, the real estate agent. Mr. Davis was foreman of the Pennsylvania freight house in this city a number of years, leaving here at the time that Agent Sawyer was transferred to Indianapolis.

Assistant Road Foreman of Engines R. J. Lyons, of the Pennsylvania; Mrs. Lyons and Mrs. Frank Rhoades, have returned from Decatur, Ind., where they attended the high school commencement exercises, upon invitation of Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Rice, whose daughter, Miss Frances Rice, was one of the graduates.

Master Mechanic Samuel Wass, of the Rhinesmith & Simonson factory, will have charge of the services at the City mission, on West Main street, tomorrow afternoon, at 3 o'clock, and again at 7:30 o'clock in the evening. Miss Reinbold, who has charge of the mission, has gone to Knox, Ind., to visit her mother.

Nevada, Ind., is no longer a station on the Panhandle road. It never paid the company to maintain a station there and Wednesday the little building which served as a freight house, ticket and telegraph office, was loaded upon a flat car and taken to Kokomo, where it was set down in the north yards to serve as a freight house and telegraph office.

The New Haven News says that John Shuckman has moved his family from Chicago to New Haven, their old home, and that he is now employed in the Nickel Plate offices in this city. That paper also says that O. J. Pond, formerly with the Wabash and Nickel Plate at New Haven, is suffering from ivy poison, which has spread over his face and hands. Mr. Pond is coal agent in Michigan for the Hocking Valley road, but he resides in New Haven.

Frank M. Redmon, the Wabash yard engineer, who is in Hope hospital for treatment for a malady that has caused him considerable trouble for some time, may have to submit to a surgical operation before he leaves that institution. The operation will not be of a dangerous character, and it is believed it will restore the health of the patient. During the absence of Mr. Redmon from the cab, Engineer Harry Reynolds, of Peru, has charge there.

EXPLAINS REMOVAL OF TELEGRAPH POLES

Pennsylvania Official Says Western Union Refusec to Sell Lines.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 23.—Cnas. M. Schaeffer, superintendent of telegraph of the Pennsylvania railroad company, in speaking of the removal of the Western Union wires and poles from the Pennsylvania lines, said:

"The Western Union telegraph company, under its contract with the Pennsylvania railroad company, bound itself, upon six months' notice after the termination of the contract, to remove its poles and wires from the property of the railroad company, and upon failure to do so the contract provided that the Pennsylvania railroad company had the right to remove the poles and wires at the expense of the telegraph company. The Pennsylvania railroad company, in order to save the telegraph company the expense and loss incident to the removal of the poles and wires, offered to purchase the lines at a fair valuation, but the Western Union telegraph company evidently preferred to allow the Pennsylvania railroad company to tear them down and remove them at its expense. The Pennsylvania railroad company having entered into a contract with the Postal telegraph company to provide them with facilities on its lines, was compelled to remove the poles and wires of the Western Union telegraph company in order to put themselves in a position to carry out their agreement with the Postal telegraph company, as the right-of-way occupied by the Western Union telegraph company was necessary for that purpose."

BUSINESS GOES ON.

New York, May 23.—Inquiries at the main offices of the Western Union in this city elicited the information today that their business was moving without interruption and that any reports to the contrary are grossly exaggerated. The legal questions involved in the action of the Pennsylvania railroad are in the hands of Judge Dillon, counsel for the company, who will take the necessary steps to protect the Western Union's interests.

STORKS AS MESSENGERS.

A German nobleman of experimental turn of mind, curious as to the migratory habits of the storks which return each spring to his park, caught one last autumn and affixed to its neck a silver plate on which were engraved the words. "This stork comes from Germany." The bird has just returned to his summer haunts, still wearing the silver neckpiece, on which had been engraved beneath the original inscription the words, "India returns him with a gift to his German owner." Attached to the collar was a small parcel wrapped in waterproof containing a ring of unmistakable Indian workmanship. When the bird flies south this autumn he will be the bearer of a message of inquiry as to the identity of the donor of the ring.—Minneapolis Tribune.

BAR ASSOCIATION BANQUET JUNE 9

Committees Named to Arrange for the Event—News in the Courts.

The Allen County Bar association held a meeting in the superior court room this morning, with the president, Judge Zollars, in the chair and a very general attendance of members of the bar. The purpose of the meeting was to arrange for the forthcoming banquet of the bar association, and to provide, if it be found desirable, for annual functions of this character.

The idea had its inception in the four banquets which have been given by the Blackford Law club, the association of younger attorneys, and June 9 was fixed as the date for the function. District Judge Anderson, of the United States bench, will be holding court in Fort Wayne at that time, and it was decided to invite not only the members of the Blackford Law club, but Judge Anderson and the United States court officials to be the guests of the bar association at the banquet. Committees were named as follows:

On Arrangements—J. H. Aiken, W. Leonard, W. P. Breen.

On Program—J. M. Barrett, E. V. Harris, Lieut. Gov. N. W. Gilbert.

On Finance—H. C. Underwood, R. B. Dreibelbiss, J. M. Haley.

A number of other matters relative to the banquet were left to the discretion of the committee on arrangements, and the association adjourned to meet at the call of that committee.

NEWS IN THE COURTS.

Judge Heaton, sitting in the circuit court today, set the case of McCarty et al., charged with rioting, for June 4. The defendants waived a jury, and Judge Heaton will hear the case.

There was a large attendance of attorneys in the circuit court this morning to hear the argument on the motion to strike the complaint in the case of Strobel vs. Zoeller et al. from the docket and place it on exhibition in the relic room. Mr. Strobel was also on hand to take up the argument, but Judge O'Rourke had been called to Indianapolis, and Judge Heaton decided to defer the matter until his return.

The Fort Wayne Trust company, receiver for the Fort Wayne Water Power company, filed an application in the superior court today asking for authority to make extensive improvements upon the property, reviving the dam and increasing the water power very materially. The proposed improvements will necessitate a considerable expenditure of money, and Judge Heaton asked that he be furnished an estimate of the probable cost before he acted upon the application.

A spirited colloquy occurred in the superior court this morning between Attorney Bohen and Attorney Westrumb. The latter had entered his appearance in the divorce case of Kemp vs. Kemp, in which Mr. Bohen was engaged, and the latter demanded that the entrance be withdrawn. Mr. Westrumb finally acquiesced, and the incident was closed.

The case of Wilber A. Ross vs. Charles W. Norcross has been appealed from Justice Skelton to the circuit court.

The last will of Frances C. Sinclair has been probated. The decedent directed that her property be given to an aunt, Isabella C. Rugg, or in the event of the death of the latter, to two cousins, Alma L. Kimball and Louise Kimball.

KNOCKED OUT BY ELECTRIC SHOCK

B. F. Mowery, of Aboit, Has Strenuous Time of It—Further Storm Damage.

B. F. Mowery, an employe of the Fort Wayne Traction company, whose home is at Aboit station, was knocked insensible by an electric shock on West Main street, near Calhoun, at 10 o'clock Friday evening. For ten minutes the man was unconscious, and vigorous efforts were necessary to rescusitate him.

Mowery is employed at nights, and was handling one of the electric torches by which workmen are enabled to carry forward their work in the darkness. Light is secured by connection with the trolley wires above, but in some manner the apparatus in Mowery's hand came prematurely in contact with the rail, and he received a heavy voltage of electricity, which threw him a distance of ten feet. Bystanders quickly gathered and after a time the man revived. He is still suffering somewhat from his experience.

BLEW DERRICK DOWN.

The wind and electrical storm which passed over Fort Wayne shortly after noon Friday did extensive damage in other parts of Allen county, also. The derrick at oil well No. 2, on the Null farm in the New Haven oil field, was blown down, as was also a windmill upon the premises of Herman Pranger. Orchard and other trees east of the city suffered severely.

North of Fort Wayne the severity of the wind was equally intense. Reports are received of much damage to trees, and in occasional instances smaller buildings were moved from their foundation.

HOW THE CITY OF CHICAGO CAME TO EXIST.

Canoes were coming down the two branches of the river and up into the main stream from the broad lake in shoals. The ten-year-old son of Chief Sunawenonee of the Pottawatomies of the prairies sat among the low junipers on a sand hill just where the river turned southward, bending from its straight course toward the lake.

From his point of vantage he could see without being seen the canoes of painted braves dancing on the lake, working their way cautiously over the sandbars at the mouth of the river and stealing in and out of the jungles of wild rice that almost closed the channel of the stream. And he could watch the parties of warriors that were coming, single file, on ponies, over the trails that were plainly marked in the prairie grass and through the sloughs that bordered the river, says the Little Chronicle.

The country was the red man's. For generations back Indian tribes had met here for the council, and the chief's son loved it with a passion that matched his hatred of the government fort on the river. He had watched with bitterness the soldiers build it of logs and hewn in the only belt of oak woods in the stretch of prairie south of the river. Fort, guardhouse, barracks, store, palisades, sprang up. The Pottawatomies of the prairies had retreated to the bluffs, where they might not see the smart soldiers pacing their beats and challenging passing Indians. For six miles along the shore and back from the mouth of the river this tract now belonged, by treaty of cession, to the United States. It was the old council ground, but now the tribes crossed it only by permission.

Except for the new fort there were only the four cabins of French trappers and their Indian wives and John Kinzie's house. This was of hewn logs with a piazza across the front, a bake house, a dairy, a fur-trading house and a house of hospitality to which any Indian was free to go for food, shelter and medicine. In John Kinzie's enclosed garden wonderful flowers and strange vegetables grew in profusion, and on the lawn that sloped to the river the fur trader's four children played under cottonwood trees and Lombardy poplars, which the trader had brought from a far country. The red men did not look upon John Kinzie's house as an intrusion as they did upon the new fort, for the fur-trader was their friend.

It was in the spring of 1804. A great council had been called and every Pottawatomie and Ojibwa and Ottawa chief had mustered his band of braves. The Indian boy had never seen so many warriors together in such bravery of fringed deer skin, beads, medals, paint and weapons. They had come from across the lake, from the northern islands and from the woods and bluffs about the Rock of St. Louis to the west. Never had he seen them so excited and so eager to make a show. Even their ponies and canoes were gaudily decorated, and they came in over water and prairie and slough in grand style, with flourishing weapons and wild whoops.

All day long they came in. Some made mock passes with their weapons at the soldiers who took this show of hostility good naturedly enough, but the chief's son, sitting among the junipers noted that the guard had been increased. The Indians turned their backs scornfully on the fort and marched up to the bluffs to the north.

As night came on the lodge fires twinkled in the dark woods. There would be a great feast of fish and venison and maize cakes with Indian sugar which the squaws had made in the maple groves. A council meeting would be held afterward, and perhaps a war dance and an attack on the fort. The chief's young son did not know the plans of the chiefs—did not know, indeed, what he himself wished. For Sunawenonee's son there was greater charm in John Kinzie's house than in an Indian feast and council. And if anything should happen he should like to be where he could see.

After dark he slipped from the juniper thicket over the whitewashed paling and into the darkest corner of the piazza. Through the open door he watched the preparations for supper at the wide fireplace, the children dancing in the firelight, the long table set with great steaming platters and shining pewter plates. Many trappers had come in with the Indians. The son of Sunawenonee knew all of them—Ouilmette with his squaw and Mark Baubein with his curling black hair, merry eye and his violin.

After a time the Frenchman began to play. The council fire had been lit on the bluff and the red light streamed far out over the rippling water. White moonlight flooded the prairie and the sheets of water of the sloughs glittered. The white fort rose stark by the riverside. Now and then there was the rattle of a musket. A cheerful clatter of plates came from the kitchen and the laughter of the children who danced to Mark Baubein's music.

Sweeter than revenge was that violin music to Sunawenonee's son. All the bitterness died out of his heart as he listened. He wished only good to white men and red. Dreamy music it was, like the ripple of the water, like the wind in tall prairie grass and the whirr of ducks' wings. He thought of the sap singing up the tassling maples, of squaws and children in the autumn cornfields, of does running unafraid in open forests. Sunawenonee's son slept, but still the music of Mark Baubein's violin brought visions to him. He dreamed a prophecy of the city that was to be.

In his dream he saw himself a man, a haughty, silent man sitting in council beside his father. He spoke, but no one heard him. His voice was drowned in warwhoops. Again, on the prairie trails were files of prairie warriors; again canoes danced on the broad bosom of the lake. He slipped away along the shore and watched among the junipers on the sand dunes. There was a guard of Pottawatomies about the house of John Kinzie, for many strange tribes were here for this work of winning back the old council ground.

Like an avalanche they swept down the lake shore. There were cries, groans, shrieks and thousands danced around the blazing fort. A little company of white soldiers and settlers watched the awful sight from the shelter of a group of cottonwood, whither they had fled, on the shore to the south. The braves danced over that desolated spot also.

Wild ducks reared their young and departed, gray wolves haunted the prairies. Red men roamed over the place at will now, taking the old way down the south branch to the portage and carrying their canoes across to the headwaters of the Illinois, as they had done before Marquette had preached the gospel of the cross to them.

After a few seasons John Kinzie returned to his house, which he found undisturbed, and children played under the poplars once more in peace and security now, for the red man's strength had been broken in the defeat of Tecumseh and the Prophet at Tippecanoe.

What Sunawenonee's son had tried to tell the tribes in the council meeting before the great tragedy he now saw come true. A tide of white men, a flood that the red man could not stem began to pour through this gateway from the lake. Log cabins began to be built on the sand dunes to the north of the river, after the junipers had been cleared away. Hunters and trappers came in from distant points for supplies. Every spring processions of caravans came around the lower end of the lake from the east, paused for a few days and disappeared to the westward in the timberlands along the great rivers.

Was that a canoe on the water? No, it was a white man's sailboat with barrels of flour on deck. It could not get over the sand bars, but was unloaded by canoes that put out from shore. There were strange things to eat and drink in the town, and everyone was in a fury of a hurry to get in or out, to buy or sell, to build or tear down. So many strangers came that John Kinzie's house could not hold them all. There was a big house of public entertainment raised above the slough and there Mark Baubein played his violin evenings.

And the fort was rebuilt. John Kinzie's daughters danced with the officers and laughed as if that tragedy had never happened under the cottonwoods. Sunawenonee's son marveled and grew sad, for he saw his tribe dwindling and losing its craft and bravery.

A ferryboat now carried passengers across the river. Slowly the little frontier town rose above the mud. The marsh was drained into the river; the wild ducks flew away and the wild rice died out of the stream. By and by a corduroy bridge was built and settlers began to build homes along the lake shores. In increasing numbers men poured in from the east to conquer the west.

Sawed lumber and brick began to come in by wagon and boat. The houses grew to be so many that they were set in regular lines. Above the music of the violin there arose the hum of many people and of industry. Sailboats and steamboats crowded the harbor. Iron horses rode over the old Indian trails, the river was spanned with bridges and swarms of people came in at the lake gate and sought the portage, the west.

The fort disapeared, for it was no longer needed. The red man was gone from his old haunts. Sunawenonees' son, sitting among a remnant of his tribe in a reservation on the east side of the lake, saw the sky above the old council ground redden once, but the flames died down and the city rose higher and stronger than of old. Monuments of brick and stone and iron rose from streets of granite. As far as the belt of oak woods that once broke the prairie stretched interminable streets. A pall of smoke hung above and a babel of sound filled the space below where once the wild duck could be heard calling to her nestlings in the green rice.

The great city still held its primeval power as a magnet for trade. As the Indians had once brought their skins to John Kinzie the nations of the earth now brought their goods for barter. Ships unloaded their cargoes of coal and iron and eastern goods at the docks and took on the grain and lumber and meat from the west.

To Sunawenonee's son, whose tribe faded from the earth, there was music in the rush and roar and clatter. He understood it and loved it. In his last years, he cried to his people: "Resist no more! Live the life of the white man."

He himself was carried far. He was shaken, jostled out of Pottawatomie ideals, but he still heard the music. Was Madame Kinzie trying to waken him, and was the French trader still playing the violin? There was a roar and ringing of bells, the scream of whistles, a rush of feet, the crash of a slamming door and sharp voice crying in his ear:

"Chicago!"

It all happened in the span of one man's lifetime. This autumn Chicago celebrates the centennial of the building of Fort Dearborn at Es-chi-ka-gou in the Pottawatomie country. Ten years ago there was still living on the Pottawatomie Indian reservation in western Michigan Chief Simon Pokagon, son of Sunawenonee, who led the massacre of 1812. In one century Chicago has grown from a frontier army post, 200 miles beyond the Wabash and the western limits of civilization, to one of the greatest cities of the world, and near the center of population of the United States.

OLD DECLARATION EARLY DESTROYED.

One hundred years from now the parchment on which the Declaration of Independence is written will be a blank. There can be no doubt about it. The precious writing has not only half disappeared already, but is steadily continuing to fade. Though now locked up in a steel box, where not so much as a ray of light can get at it, the most interesting and valuable document in the national archives is doomed.

The committee of the Academy of Science, which examined it the other day, expressed to Secretary Hay this view, while discountenancing any project or "restoration."

Nevertheless it is by no means certain that an effort to "restore" it will not be made before very long, as a choice between evils. Hazardous though such an experiment might be, it would be preferable to a certainty of absolute loss. The director of the famous Bodleian library in England wrote only the other day to Andrew H. Allen, the official custodian of the Declaration at the state department, that in case such a step were decided upon he would like to suggest a "reviving" process which had proved highly successful in his own experience.

If anything of the kind is attempted, the "reviving" will be tried first, experimentally, upon a single letter of the script. Whatever the exact method adopted, it will be a process of intensification by means of acid, which acts upon the substance of the ink and gives to the latter blackness and permanency. The trial, of course, would have to be made with the utmost care, inasmuch as, for one point, there is no telling what might be the effect of the acid upon the parchment. One piece of parchment, you see, may respond, in a case of the sort, quite differently from another.

The Declaration would be today in as perfect condition as when it was written but for an outrageous assault that was committed upon its precious text in 1823. In that year a copperplate was made from it in order that copies of it might be furnished to the descendants of the original signers. Nowadays such a purpose could be accomplished by harmless photographic processes; but in those times the camera was unknown and the experts engaged for the work performed their task by laying a sheet of damp linen cloth upon the document and going over the letters with a stylus. Through this medium the writing was finally transferred to a sheet of copper, from which all of the authentic extant replicas of the Declaration have been printed.

The copperplate copy, which everybody has seen, was admirable. It reproduced the document to such perfection that not a shading nor a whisker on a letter was missing; but it ruined the original. The wetting dissolved to some extent the ink, and incidentally the parchment itself was seriously damaged. Hence the progressive deterioration which has followed.

How far the process of copperplate reproduction was responsible for the trouble is proved by the fact that Thomas Jefferson's rough draft of the Declaration—made previously, of course—is as good as new today, the ink in which it was written being perfectly black. The Articles of Confederation of the Colonies likewise (exquisitely engrossed) look almost as if they were written yesterday. They are on a long roll of fine sheepskin parchment, the sheets of which are sewn together with utmost delicacy.

The text of the Declaration, even now, is fairly legible in most of its parts, but nearly all of the signatures have vanished. This circumstance necessarily gives great value to the original and perfect copperplate, which is preserved in the archives of the department of state. Not for any ordinary consideration, however, would the government permit even one more print to be made from it. It has been reproduced in the shape of an electrotype, from which any future copies that may be required will be struck off when congress chooses so to direct.

The Declaration of Independence was given into the keeping of the department of state as a part of the official papers of the continental congress. In 1841 it was deposited in the patent office (then a bureau of the department of state), and after the transfer of that bureau to the interior department, was placed on exhibition in a brilliant light, which hastened the decay of the manuscript. It was returned to the department of state in 1877 on the completion of fireproof quarters built to shelter the archives of the government, and there it has remained ever since.

Meanwhile, it had come to be realized that the nation's most precious historical document was threatened with destruction. A report went abroad that it was fading, and in 1876 congress passed a resolution to consider the question of restoring it. The matter was submitted for judgment to a number of distinguished scholars and chemists. There were many volunteers who guaranteed to work wonders with the disappearing text, but the final decision of the department of state was unfavorable and nothing was done.

Eleven years ago the question was revived, owing to the fact that a progressive deterioration in the condition of the document had become painfully manifest. The National Academy of Sciences was called upon for an opinion and declared that the precious instrument of liberty ought to be put away in the dark. Whereupon this was done, and since then the declaration has not been on public view. Unquestionably the treatment adopted was beneficial, but it has sufficed only to lessen the rapidity of the fading.

The original constitution of the United States is in an excellent state of preservation, though the edges of the paper on which it is engrossed are somewhat broken, owing to the fact that the document used to be kept rolled in cylindrical tin box. To prevent further damage from this cause it was transferred about ten years ago to a portfolio expressly made for it. The text of the constitution today is perfect in all respects, save that the ink of the words, "We, the People," in great letters, with which it begins, is somewhat crumbled by the rolling.

Should it be decided to be advisable to restore the declaration the work will be placed in the hands of experts, who are able to accomplish things in this line which are almost beyond imagining by the ordinary citizen.

In the case of some papers of Benjamin Franklin a person connected with the British museum was employed not long ago to replace certain missing words which had been eaten out by mice. His charge was something like £1 a letter—not an excessive price when it is considered that he had to put in the missing fragments of paper and counterfeit the writing, his task being so beautifully performed that it left no trace visible.

During the last few years the department of state has been spending a good deal of money in restoring the historical archives of the government. The writings of President Monroe have been repaired and bound in twenty-two large volumes, each letter or other bit of manuscript being mounted on a separate sheet in such a way that it can be examined without handling. The papers of James Madison, comprising forty-four volumes, have been similarly edited, and the literary remains of George Washington, likewise in course of preparation, are expected to compose at least 300 volumes.

The Declaration of Independence is now laid away in a drawer, flat and carefully wrapped, in a steel safe, which also contains the constitution. It was photographed April 24 of this years and will be again photographed every ten years from now in order to find out how rapidly the process of fading is progressing.

Sport in the Soudan.

Bordering the White Nile, some 300 miles south of Khartoum and extending some 200 miles farther south to near Fashoda, is as fine a big game country as is to be found in Africa, says the Graphic. The following species abound on either bank of the river: Elephant, giraffe, buffalo, lion, leopard, cheetah, sewal, roan antelope, waterbuck, tora hartebeest, bestard hartebeest, white-eared cob, reedbuck, gazelle, ostrich, hippopotamus, wart-hog, etc. The pursuit of game in this district, as also in the rest of theSoudan, is closely restricted by the Soudan game laws, which are everywhere strictly enforced. The killing of elephant and buffalo with large bore rifles, though doubtless exciting sport, does not compare with the method practiced by the Selim Baggara Arabs, who hunt them on horseback armed only with their broad-headed spears. In this sport the white man is practically precluded from taking an active part, owing to the nature of the bush and cotton soil. Their plan is as follows: Parties of from four to ten men, riding about nine to ten stone, mounted on 13-hand Abyssinian ponies, price 30 to 40 sheep (i. e., £3 to £4, for the price of sheep here averages about 2s), accompanied by their women and donkeys, encamp near some spot known to be the drinking place of the elephants. These, however, only drink about every third night, and pass the interim some twenty miles or more in dense and waterless jungle. The hunters having settled their camp on the river, leave their women in charge and themselves sleep the night some eight or ten miles inland and to leeward of the numerous elephant tracks leading to the river.

If in luck, they will probably hear the herd trumpeting during the night, and in any case, at the first streak of dawn, every man will be in the saddle, and they at once proceed to draw up wind for fresh spoor. It may be here remarked their toilet is not extensive, their hunting kit being little more than nature gave them, as practically all clothes are dispensed with in order to facilitate passage through the holding "wait-a-bit" or "kitr" bush. Occasionally the elephants are met returning leisurely from their libations, which simplifies matters considerably, but more often they have compassed the ten miles by the river and by dawn are well on their way to their home in the thickest bush, as a rule at least twenty miles from the river.

If the latter be the case, on hitting off the spoor the Arabs at once dash off with wild hoorooshes in headlong pursuit along the plainly visible track, and continue at top speed, with here and there a momentary check, regardless of all obstacles, such as fallen trees, branches, deep-backed elephant tracks, bufinches, "wait-a-bit" bush, and the worst cotton soil, until they come up to the herd or "mark them to ground," after, perhaps, a ten-mile point in the impenetrable kitr bush, which serves as a sanctuary for them. On nearing the elephants the cows often turn and challenge their pursuers before being actually molested; however, in any case a battle royal is shortly begun. The Arabs, one by one, thrusting dexterously with their keen, broad bladed spears at the hind-quarters of the selected elephant, are each in turn pursued, but only to return and renew the attack afresh.

Eventually the mighty pachyderm subsides, weak from the loss of blood from many a wound and is then at the mercy of his wildly vociferating assailants. Now and again a fall at a critical moment leaves an Arab an easy victim to the infuriated beast; but so nimble are these hard and wiry men that fatal or even serious accidents are rare. On the fall of the elephant messengers are at once dispatched to the camp on the Nile, now, perhaps, twenty miles distant, to inform the women, who hastily collect all available donkeys and waterskins and forthwith set out for the scene of the kill to bring home the meat and the much-prized hide and ivory. The ponies meanwhile have probably been without water since the previous afternoon and will now have a long jog back to the river, which they may possibly reach about 2 p. m., by which time the temperature will be nearer 110 degrees than 100 degrees in the shade. Buffalo sticking is carried out on similar lines, but is less severe on the ponies, as they seldom travel more than four or five miles from the river. Giraffe also afford the Arabs excellent and less dangerous sport, and their hide makes the best of sandals and shields. Such was the training ground of the devoted cavalry of the Khalifa, who charged with such magnificent and reckless bravery up the glacis to the muzzles of the magazine rifles and machine guns in the British zeriba at Omdurman. Now all is forgiven and forgotten, and a British officer is a welcome and honored guest among them and is treated with the utmost courtesy and hospitality.

WHEN MILES WAS DEFEATED.

General Miles is quoted by a fellow officer as telling the following story on himself:

"It was during our pursuit of Chief Joseph," said the general. "One exceedingly stormy night we encountered on our march in the Bearpaw mountains a few woodchoppers' cabins. The woodsmen were not inclined to be very hospitable, but we finally induced them to share with us the protection their huts afforded.

"They consented, however, only upon condition that they should not under any circumstances be compelled to give up their beds. It fell to my lot to share the bunk of the boss, a very stern Irishman, who was not delighted with his guest.

"Hoping to establish an entente cordiale I said, banteringly, as we were preparing to retire:

"'Come now, Patrick, you know you'd be a long time in Ireland before you'd get a chance to sleep with a general.'

"'And it's Oi that am thinkin',' he instantly retorted, 'that you'd be a long time in Ireland before you'd iver be made a gineral.'"

The Secret of Grant's Success.

There goes a man whose jaw, brow, eye, walk and manner of speech tell me, as a physiognomist, that if we ever have a long war, he ought to be heard from, remarked a veteran army officer to the Washington correspondent of the New York Evening Post, as both looked after the retreating figure of a young major who literally won his spurs in the war with Spain. "But you can't always tell how a fellow will turn out under such a test. Nature intended him for a masterful career; he may spoil it all, though, by remaining what and where he is now, instead of broadening with increased experience and observation.

"You know how little many of the older men, brought up in the red-tape school of their day, thought of Grant when he was first set to do a big task. I have had, at various times, many of his military papers to read, and it has been a subject of curious study for me how these reveal the change that gradually took place in him, not as the result of any particular incidents or episodes, but through absorption, as it were. He was a great man to notice little things that would escape an ordinary apprehension. I don't doubt that, if we were to analyze his career with care, we should find many evidences of the part this faculty played in winning his victories. Where did I see the signs of it? In the way he wrote his letters and drew up his formal reports. For example, when he began his career in the civil war, he was a simply fearful speller, and ungrammatical and uncouth in his expressions—the kind of man, in short, who would exasperate a purist or a person of methodical business training, and make one ache to order him for a term or two to the common schools. Before he had got through his work was symmetrical and finished, his handwriting was neat, his papers were drawn up with accuracy and he had acquired a style which, though extremely simple, was strong and full of individuality.

"A chronological order in reading his papers would show you how he had overcome one fault after another merely through noticing what other officers did with whom he was in correspondence. The correction of a spelling, for instance, though conveyed through no other medium than the proper spelling of the same word in the letter that came back to him, was never ignored—you cannot find the place where he makes the same mistake again. It was likewise with the straightening out of his awkward phraseology. I have had occasion to study the correspondence and notebooks of many officers, but I never saw a series in which the development of a man's mind on lines which many persons would consider unworthy of much thought was so plainly marked. To me it seems part of Grant's nature revealed through a very little window. Thoroughness lies at the basis of all mental and moral broadening; and Grant's readiness to observe, and, what is better, to act on his observations, in even comparatively small details, is in my judgment one key to his supremacy.

"You remember, perhaps, the terms of surrender which Grant prepared for Lee to sign? They were notable, first, for their terseness; as they crowded into a dozen lines what almost any one else would have spread over as many pages, but still more for the fact that they were written in Grant's own hand—as, indeed, was substantially every one of his papers of that whole war—and while the party sat at the rendezvous. Horace Porter, our present ambassador to France, was there, as aide to the general. He tells me that at McLean's house Grant, after greeting Lee and his secretary and exchanging a few sentences of conversation with them, motioned them to chairs opposite the center table, and then seated himself and began to write. If he had been sending a casual note inviting a brother officer to dinner he could not have been less agitated, outwardly at least, and yet he was bringing to an end a war of four years' duration, one of the stubbornest and bloodiest in modern history, and one which, but for his success, might have changed the whole current of human civilization.

"He had just closed a sentence, as shown by the momentary cessation of the scratching on the paper, when a little ray of light broke through an opening between him and the con-

The New Baby

Motherhood is woman's natural destiny—actual barrenness is rare—comforting words to childless women.

Many women are denied the happiness of children simply because of some curable derangement of the generative organs.

Among the many triumphs of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is overcoming cases of supposed barrenness. Thousands of children owe their existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This great medicine is so well calculated to regulate every function of the generative organs that its efficiency in this respect is vouched for by multitudes of women.

Nine Years Without a Child.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—We had been married nine years and never had children, and now we have a little baby girl nineteen months old, the joy of our life. She owes her existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Before taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I was a constant sufferer. I had pains in my back and sides, especially before menstruation. I had doctored but received no benefit. Hearing so much about the Vegetable Compound I decided to try it, and after taking six bottles was cured."—MRS. T. H. GOULBEY, 1223 Nevada St., East Toledo, Ohio.

Portrait of a Baby Girl Who Owes her Existence to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you some time ago asking why I could not have a child. I explained that I had displacement of the womb and ovarian trouble, and suffered with backache and headache. You sent me a nice letter in reply giving me full instructions how to treat myself, and in accordance with your directions I took your Vegetable Compound, and followed your kind advice faithfully in every respect, and now I have a little girl, the joy of our home. I never would have had my baby if it had not been for your advice and medicine.

"I cannot praise Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound enough for what it has done for me. I hope other childless women will see this letter."—MRS. JOHN UEBERLACKER, 1111 Broadway, Cleveland, Ohio.

Another Happy Case in Brooklyn.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wrote to you a year ago telling you of my troubles. I had pains in the ovaries, menses were painful, and I had never borne children.

"You answered my letter and I followed your advice. I was completely cured. Have just given birth to a fine, healthy babe, and during childbirth had a very easy time.

"Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines are a God send to women who want to be mothers."—Mrs. SCHULTZ, 12 Luzner St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Many women whose letters we print were utterly discouraged, and life lacked all joy to them when they wrote Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., without charge of any kind. They received advice which made them strong, useful women again.

817 CALHOUN STREET.

W. J. HOSEY SAYS THE CITY AND PEOPLE ARE COMMITTED TO MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

Editor of The Sentinel: The city of Fort Wayne and its people are committed to the municipal ownership of an electric light plant for street, commercial and domestic lighting.

Until now no one has entertained the thought that the city would erect a plant simply for the street lights and let some private company do the commercial lighting. Before Mr. McDonald died, the city had committed itself to the construction of a municipal lighting plant by levying a tax to accumulate a fund.

In his report of Feb. 12, 1901, Comptroller Berghoff said:

"I think it safe for the city now to set aside $20,000 out of the general fund to municipal electric light plant fund to be credited to said account on or before April 1st, 1901. * * * My reason for suggesting to you for the setting aside of twenty thousand dollars to municipal electric light plant fund is this, that I believe that the time has come without fail when the people of this city will demand the construction and ownership of a municipal electric light plant and as I have said in my last annual report, all efforts of this government should be directed to this one point to be ready to construct said plant within the next three years, so as to be able to operate the same when the contract with the Jenney Electric Light and Power Co. expires. * * * * I also believe that in order to carry out these suggestions of mine, an additional levy of five cents per one hundred dollars valuation should be made to the electric levy, making the total of that levy about 8 or 9 cents, which would yield an annual income of nearly twenty thousand dollars, and in three years would give us a building fund of very near one hundred thousand dollars, without burdening any tax payer in any particular way."

Council proceedings, 1901, page 15.

In his message of May 14, 1901, Mayor Berghoff said:

"The question of erecting a municipal lighting plant should not be overlooked, and every effort of the city government should be concentrated upon the point to erect the same within the next four years."—Council proceedings, 1901, page 80.

In his message of April 25, 1902, submitting the proposition of the Jenney Electric Light and Power Co. to sell its plant to the city, Mayor Berghoff said:

"I believe the people want municipal ownership, and if this object can be obtained at the present time, it is better to do so now than to delay it until such a time when the present plant has paid its debts and has grown to such proportion that it will be practically impossible to buy it, or remove it as a competitor. * * I consider it the exercise of good judgment if the city wants a municipal plant and can acquire it now at an honest value, she should take it now and make the profit instead of the stockholders."

In his message of March 28th, 1899, Mayor Scherer said:

"I am in favor of municipal ownership (electric lights), and in view of the vote of the members of the council placing upon the duplicate a tax for that purpose, I take it that you are irrevocably committed to that principal. * * * And yet it must be apparent to us all that when the city undertakes to light its own streets, it will also do commercial lighting, as there is complaint now at the rate charged by the Jenney company, and a demand for municipal commercial lighting. * * * For I firmly believe that we can make the price of electric lights so low as to place them within the reach of all the people, besides giving the residence portion of the city as good a street lighting system as the business portion."

In compliance with a resolution passed by the common council on the 25th of April, 1899, the mayor, on the 9th of May, 1899, appointed a committee of councilmen and citizens to confer with the Jenney Electric Light and Power company with a view of purchasing its plant by the city. The purpose then was to purchase the stock owned by Mr. McDonald at the time of his death. A portion of the committee so appointed called upon the administrator of McDonald's estate and tried to ascertain the amount of the lighting stock owned by the estate and the amount for which it could be purchased. They were unable to learn either, and in September following that stock was sold at private sale, without advertisement, and purchased by Mr. White for 47 cents on the dollar. In all of the steps taken by the common council the republican members acted with the democrats in favor of municipal ownership and the levy of a tax to consummate that object.

The democratic city convention in May, 1901, committed itself by a resolution in favor of municipal ownership, and upon that basis the mayor and other city officers and the councilmen were elected.

The Journal company procured from all the candidates for the common council an interview and received the statements from them that they were in favor of municipal ownership. A part of them expressed themselves definitely for the ownership of the lighting plant to furnish light for the city and for commercial lighting, and it was well understood by all of the candidates, and by everybody else, that when the city should own a municipal lighting plant it should furnish light both for street and commercial lighting.

At the council meeting of March 28th, 1899, a resolution was passed declaring that a franchise should not be granted to any company for lighting the streets and supplying the inhabitants with electric lights at the expiration of the present Jenney electric light contract. The relation of the city to the electric works was the same then as now. There has been no change in the policy of the city. The works were here then, as they are now. There has been no substantial change in public sentiment. If there has been any change at all it is simply that which has been brought about by the personal influence and relations of the present and prospective stockholders, and their persistence in trying to create the impression that the remaining of the electric works here is dependent upon the granting of the new contract, a persistence which does not change public sentiment by appeal to reason and argument, but attempts to force it. No present member of the common council can vote for the proposed contract without violating his pledges made to the people when he was elected and stultifying his record which he has made by statements, pledges and votes in the common council. William J. Hosey.

TRAVELING IS DANGEROUS.

Constant motion jars the kidneys, which are kept in place in the body by delicate attachments. This is the reason that travelers, trainmen, street car men, teamsters and all who drive very much suffer from kidney disease in some form. Foley's Kidney Cure strengthens the kidneys and cures all forms of kidney and bladder disease. Geo. E. Hausan, locomotive engineer, Lima, O., writes, "Constant vibration of the engine caused me a great deal of trouble with my kidneys, and I got no relief until I used Foley's Kidney Cure." A MUSICAL TREAT.

The closing recital of the Nocturne society was given last night in the Masonic Temple by George Hamlin, tenor, and W. C. E. Seeboeck, of Chicago. The audience was highly appreciative of the work of the artists and the numbers were most warmly received. Mr. Hamlin possesses a splendid tenor voice and his interpretation displayed the artist. He was heard to the best effect in the first group of songs; "Song of Faith," by Chaminade; "Roses in a Garden," by O'Neill; "Serenade," by Tosti, and the closing group, "My Love is Like a Red Red Rose," by Brandels; "A Disappointment," by Harris; "To My First Love," by Lohr, and the drinking song from Cavalleria Rusticana. The latter was the hit of the evening, and although the last number on the program, Mr. Hamlin was obliged to repeat the song. Mr. Seeboeck's playing denoted the artist and his technique was wonderful. A group of his own composition, "Rainbow," "Butterfly," "By the Frogpond" and "March Winds" was particularly fine. Mr. Seebroeck repeated "By the Frogpond," an amusing fantasy, in response to a prolonged encore. He accompanied Mr. Hamlin in a most finished manner.

SPROUTING WINGS.

Whether we want to live on this old world forever or not, the scientists are doing their best to compel us to do so. Professor Loeb thinks he has discovered a chemical elixir of life. And the news comes from the University of California that wings may be sprouted by chemical stimulus. It has been done. Only with aphides or plant lice, up to this date. But as the cells of our bodies are not so very different from those of aphides or other creatures, we need not despair of growing wings. And then—

A doubt arises, from the fact that human beings have absorbed about all the chemicals that have ever been invented. The news does not say which salt or acid or alkali caused the wings to sprout on the aphides, but what with eating arsenic for our complexions, dosing ourselves with drugs for our livers, smoking tobacco, opium and other narcotics, chewing betel nuts and every other stimulating plant, it will have to be a new and powerful chemical that shall begin to turn human beings into earthly angels. If the scientists could but show us how to stop the toothache or grow hair on bald heads we might take more stock in their tales of elixirs of life and sprouting wings.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Fort Wayne men and women say so—men and women who have been cured—you can't doubt their testimony—
There could not be stronger proof than the word of your own neighbors—

Fort Wayne Proof.

Mr. W. T. Hume, of 35 East Williams street, carriagemaker, says: "Mr. Hume procured Doan's Kidney Pills at Meyer Bros. & Co.'s drug store and was greatly benefitted by them. He was much troubled with backache and rheumatism caused by disordered kidneys. His back was so lame he could hardly stoop and at times it was very painful for him to keep on working. The rheumatism was mostly in his ankles and caused him a great deal of suffering. As soon as he began taking Doan's Kidney Pills these symptoms of kidney trouble commenced to disappear, and soon his kidneys were in better condition than they had been for years."

RENEW SALOON FIGHT WITH GREAT VIGOR

Carried Into Every Ward in Kokomo by the Temperance People.

Kokomo, Ind., May 23.—Carrying out the prediction made last winter, the temperance forces are now taking the fight against the saloons of Kokomo into every ward of the city. Wednesday, a blanket remonstrance was started in circulation in the Second ward. For several weeks the anti-saloon people have been at work in the Third ward, strengthening their forces, and in the First, by trying to secure enough names to make a remonstrance effective.

The indications are now that the old fight will be renewed before the county commissioners, in all its bitterness. Every saloon man, who has been refused a license, has leased his place to some one else, who has filed an application. Unless the saloon men secure enough withdrawals from the Third ward remonstrance to make it operative, five more saloons will be closed there on June 1.

Saturday of this week the appeal cases of Theodore Kasten and James Reeves, the Third ward saloon men, who were refused licenses last month, will be tried. Councilman George W. Stidger, of the First ward, who is leading the saloon men in their fight, says that they will continue the fight indefinitely. The saloon men appear to have an unlimited supply of money.

BOOTLEG SYSTEM IN VOGUE.

Marion, Ind., May 23.—The authorities are making an investigation of reports of the alleged sale of intoxicating liquors within one mile of the National Soldiers' Home. While all saloons within the limit prescribed by law have been closed, it is alleged the "bootleg" system, and other methods, have been adopted. No old soldier, it is said, will be forced to walk one mile to get a drink. Arrests may follow.

The business of disposing of intoxicants to the veterans and others in the vicinity of the home is said to have grown to proportions which will equal the "moonshine business" in the mountains of Tennessee.

An interesting feature relative to the closing of saloons about the home entrance is the fact that a canteen crusade has been inaugurated among the veterans. It is said the demand for a canteen inside the home inclosure will go before the board of managers. The veterans, who are for temperance, have in circulation a petition against the canteen. It is their hope to outweigh their bibulous comrades when the matter is presented to the home authorities.

A LITTLE EARLY RISER

Now and then, at bedtime, will cure constipation, billousness and liver troubles. DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the famous little pills that cure by arousing the secretions, moving the bowels gently, yet effectually, and giving such tone and strength to the glands of the stomach and liver that the cause of the trouble is removed entirely, and if their use is continued for a few days, there will be no return of the complaint. Sold by Meyer Bros. Co.

UTILIZING WATER POWERS.

Logansport, Ind., May 23.—Members of the government geological survey, who are examining the northern Indiana rivers with swiftly-flowing currents, are much impressed with Eel, Tippecanoe, Mississinewa, Salamonie and Wabash rivers, because of their water power, which they believe can be used by factories with comparatively little cost. Earlier in the history of the state these several water powers were in great demand for grist and lumber purposes, but the advent of steam, followed by the discovery of natural gas, turned manufacturing interests in other directions. The failure of gas and the high price of fuel is again directing attention to the rivers, the more particularly as water power is specially effective in developing electrical interests. The surveying party looks for a great demand for these water powers in the immediate future.

THE X-RAYS.

Recent experiments, by practical tests and examination with the aid of the X-rays, established it as a fact that Catarrh of the Stomach is not a disease of itself, but that it results from repeated attacks of indigestion. "How Can I Cure My Indigestion?" Kodal Dyspepsia Cure is curing thousands. It will cure you of indigestion and dyspepsia, and prevent or cure Catarrh of the Stomach. Kodol digests what you eat—makes the stomach sweet. Sold by Meyer Bros. Co.

WHITE HOUSE "ZOO."

Washington, May 23.—There is a new bear at the zoo, a big, glossy black fellow, which was given to the president on his western journey. This is the avant courier of the president's collection of animals which it is expected will be coming along with almost every incoming train. He has received mountain lions, raccoons, prairie dogs, wildcats, deer and numerous other specimens from the plains and mountains, and the Roosevelt children are discussing the menagerie as a possible feature of the back yard at the white house. The boys have drawn plans for pens to accommodate the various members of the aggregation and a large lattice-work inclosure behind the executive mansion, for which no other use has been observed, has been pre-empted by the youngsters for a part of the zoological acquisitions expected to result from the president's two months' outing. The larger specimens will, however, be sent to the zoo.

A LESSON IN HEALTH.

Healthy kidneys filter the impurities from the blood, and unless they do this good health is impossible. Foley's Kidney Cure makes sound kidneys and will positively cure all forms of kidney and bladder disease. It strengthens the whole system. Sold by Dreier & Bro.

Fort Wayne took the third straight game from South Bend yesterday afternoon in the customary batting rally in the eighth inning. Curtis officiated in the box for the Railroaders and the best South Bend could do was to get five hits off him, while nine of them fanned the air. Captain Bade's men got busy in the first inning. Dennis singled and went to second on a passed ball. Ostdiek made a two-bagger and Dennis came home. After that for five innings there was nothing doing, but in the sixth inning Sager reached first on a scratch after two men were out. Spangler made a long double to left and Sager scored. South Bend came near scoring in the eighth, when Grant got a life on Hopke's error and reached second on a sacrifice hit by Coggswell. Tieman struck out, but Sager singled to right, but Grant was cut off at the plate by a fine throw by Belden. Fort Wayne got busy in the eighth and made the two runs that clinched the game. Curtis was hit by a pitched ball and reached third on a drive to center by Belden, and came home on Dennis' out to first. Belden took third on Lindsay's out to first and scored on Ostdiek's hit to center. In the ninth Ostdiek was struck on the hand and one of his fingers was dislocated. Bade Myers went behind the bat and Freck went to first. LaRue, who has been covering third for the Shamrocks this season, yesterday signed with South Bend and played his first game as a Green yesterday afternoon, covering his station in a most creditable manner. The score:

OTHER SCORES YESTERDAY.

Anderson, 3; Marion, 2.

Anderson, Ind., May 23.—The Anderson Babes won the game against Marion yesterday in their half of the twelfth inning by the opportune hitting of "Soxey" Lyons, the Elwood polo half-back, who joined the team yesterday. It was the fiercest base ball battle ever seen on these grounds. Both pitchers were steady and the only error was one by Geyer, who chased a long drive to the foul line, only to drop it. The victory has the result of awakening the people of the city to the fact that base ball is going on, and the season is really just opened. Lyons batted like a veteran and fielded well. He will stay in the place, for the present, at least. Phil O'Neill's work behind the bat was exceptional. In the ninth, Herbert, the first man up, hit for three bases. Thomas then settled down and struck out the next two men, and Hamilton flew out to Maloney. Score:

Evansville, 8; Terre Haute, 3.

Evansville, Ind., May 23.—Evansville made it five straight from Terre Haute yesterday afternoon, with perfect ease. Torrence was bumped at will and his support called forth jeers from the crowd. Evansville began hitting in runs after the first inning and added them in bunches from that time on. It was not until the seventh inning that Terre Haute could do anything with Minor, who pitched a steady game all the way through. Five hits in three innings, with a couple of passes to first, gave three runs. DeArmond was the only Hottentot who could field, and Thompson was the only one who did any opportune hitting. Umpire Kreig was hit on the arm in the fourth inning. In the seventh the pain was so great that he was forced to leave the game. Examination showed that his arm had been broken. Score:

ANY WOMAN MAY BE CURED.

MRS. FRANCES KINGSLEY,

First Vice-President of the Historical Club, 544 Garfield Ave., Chicago, Ill., says

CHICAGO, ILL., 544 Garfield Avenue, October, 9, 1902.

After doctoring for eleven months and taking forty-three bottles of medicine and finding no relief for leucorrhœa resulting from irritation of a fallen womb I took Wine of Cardui and fourteen bottles cured me. This seems strange but it is the simple truth. Wine of Cardui helped me from the time I began taking it and having heard it praised so highly by friends who had tried it I felt satisfied that it would help me, and it did. It cured me. Took every bit of ache, pain and headache, cramps and dragging down sensations away till I felt young, strong and happy once more. It is a wonderful medicine and a true friend to women. When I look back on the months of torture I had it seems like a hideous nightmare. Wine of Cardui will cure any woman I believe. I have more faith in it than all other medicines combined.

Frances Kingsley

Who would go on suffering female troubles after reading the earnest statement of this prominent woman? Are you suffering from leucorrhœa? Have you the irritation of a fallen or misplaced uterus? Do you have periodical headaches? Do you have aches, pains or cramps in the abdomen? Have you "bearing down pains"? Do you feel as if you were never "young, strong and happy"?

How can you refuse relief when you know these troubles are torturing you, are growing worse day after day? If you go to a physician after a local examination, he will probably tell you an operation is necessary. Mrs. Kingsley took Wine of Cardui and she was cured without an operation. And this is what you may do. Shooting pains, irregularity, inflammation and bearing down pains make thousands of women miserable. Why drag through life never enjoying anything? Wine of Cardui has made over 1,500,000 weak and suffering women well and strong. We ask you to go to your druggist today and secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui and begin to take it at once. Do that and the health Mrs. Kingsley writes about will soon be yours. If you think special directions are needed in your case, address, giving symptoms, Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Of course, you know that Munyon's Witch Hazel Soap for the complexion and for the toilet is superior to any high-priced French soap made. It makes the skin soft as velvet and keeps one free from pimples, blotches and most skin eruptions.

If your blood is out of order, take Munyon's Blood Cure. It will drive all impurities from the system and make good, rich, red blood.

If your liver is sluggish and you have a sallow complexion, use Munyon's Liver Cure. These two remedies, taken in alternation, will soon rid the blood and system of all impurities, and give life and vigor to the whole body, and when used in conjunction with the soap, makes the skin glow with youthful freshness.

Renewed Nervous Energy, Pure Blood, Freedom From Pain.

PAINE'S CELERY COMPOUND

THE ONE REMEDY THAT WILL REALLY MAKE YOU WELL.

Years ago when a great public demand arose for a remedy for nervous ailments as well as a reliable blood purifier, Dr. Edward E. Phelps, professor of Materia Medica and Medical Botany, of Dartmouth Medical College, gave to diseased and suffering men and women his great discovery, Paine's Celery Compound. The success of this wonderful prescription has been phenomenal. No other remedy known to medical science enjoys such a widespread reputation today.

In this month of May when so many are sick, Paine's Celery Compound makes people well. It is the one true specific prescribed by eminent practitioners for diseases arising from a debilitated nervous system; it is a positive cure for sleeplessness, wasting strength, rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, liver, and kidney troubles, and all blood diseases. Mr. J. H. Lewis, of Denver, Col., one of the most prominent life insurance men in the United States, writes as follows:

"After an attack of Grip, I found myself broken in nervous vigor, and with bowels and kidneys seriously deranged. As time brought no improvement, but rather an increased nervous prostration, I was induced to make use of Paine's Celery Compound. Before the first bottle had been used, I found a marked improvement, and its use was discontinued after I had finished the second bottle. After doing without the Compound for over a month, I find myself with the same springy step and usual vigor as before my illness, all the former lassitude and nervous disarrangement having disappeared, and difficulty with bowels and kidneys have been corrected."

THE WASTES OF THE BODY.

Every seven days the blood, muscles and bones of a man of average size loses two pounds of wornout tissue. This waste cannot be replenished and the health and strength kept up without perfect digestion. When the stomach and digestive organs fail to perform their functions, the strength lets down, health gives way, and disease sets up. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten into the kind of blood that rebuilds the tissues and protects the health and strength of the mind and body. Kodol cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia and all stomach troubles. It is an ideal spring tonic. Sold by Meyer Bros. Co.

federate officers, and fell on Lee's sword hilt. Ordinarily nothing would have resulted from this, for at that stage of the war the field uniforms and arms were in a pretty battered condition on both sides; so, in preparing for the culminating act in the drama that morning, Lee and his secretary had discarded their old toggery and dressed themselves in the best they had, including a jewelled presentation sword which Lee probably had never had out of its case before. The light falling on its ornamented hilt was reflected with a piercing flash which struck Grant full in his eyes. He had just raised them for an instant. Responsive to the flash, they sought the details of Lee's attire, and down they went upon the written sheet again, while there flowed from the nib of his pen the provision that the confederates should be allowed to wear home their side arms. It was a fine illustration of the power of momentary suggestion.

"When it was all over and Lee was riding off in the direction of his headquarters, Grant issued a few routine orders and then summoned Ingalls by a nod, and silently mounted his horse and rode away in the opposite direction. Ingalls had ridden over with him that morning and they had been engaged on the way in reminiscences of the men and adventures they had both known in the Mexican war. Porter, youthful and full of enthusiasm, believing that the first utterance of his chief after this magnificent day's work would be of historic significance, hastily mounted and rode after the pair. Grant did not open his lips for some minutes. Then, taking up the thread of the morning's chat, and with a faint smile creeping over his sunburnt face, he said:

"'By the way, Ingalls, do you remember the fellow who drove that shave-tailed mule in the baggage train of the ——th infantry the morning we went out to relieve Jones?'"

PEPSIN SYRUP CO.
Monticello, Ill.

Gentlemen,—Any person engaged in active business life is apt to become careless in regard to eating at regular hours. I found that after six years of activity in the rush of city life, I had become very irregular regarding my meals, often eating my heartiest meal late at night, after the hurry of the day was over. I soon found myself suffering with dyspepsia which gave me many an unpleasant hour. As my health had always been perfect before, I could hardly realize that I needed attention as a sick woman. I was advised to use

Dr. Caldwell's (Laxative) Syrup Pepsin

by one of my colleagues, and I sent for a bottle, wishing to give it a trial. I am pleased to say that I found it a most efficacious remedy. Within six weeks I was well once more, and heartily endorse your medicine for stomach troubles.

Sincerely yours,

BIRTHDAY of BOWSER

He Accuses His Wife of Informing Neighborhood of Anniversary

[Copyright, 1903, by C. B. Lewis.]

WHEN Mr. Bowser got up the other morning he realized that his fifty-fifth birthday had dawned. He had had the day in mind for two or three weeks, but had been careful not to mention the matter to Mrs. Bowser. His idea was to "jump over" the day without giving it away.

He feared it might be brought up at the breakfast table, but Mrs. Bowser seemed to have entirely forgotten that the month of March had anything to do with him. He got away from the house to draw a long breath of relief, and none of his fellow passengers on the street car appeared to notice that he was a relic of the last century.

It was only when he reached home again at 6 o'clock in the evening that he got a "jar." When Mrs. Bowser had greeted him she asked him to step into the parlor for a moment, and, turning up the gas, she proudly pointed to a new armchair and said:

"You see, I haven't forgotten what date it is. This is your birthday present."

"I—I don't think it is," he stammered in reply.

"Oh, but I'm sure of it! I've had it in mind for a month. Yes, you are fifty-five years old today, and I wanted you to see that I remembered it."

"Why didn't you remember that I was 155?" he growled.

"Because that's 100 years too much. Do you like the chair?"

"Um! Who said I was fifty-five?"

"Why, you are, of course. It was in the old Bible which we lost when moving. You are not ashamed of your age, are you?"

"Of course not; but don't talk nonsense. If there is any record in that old Bible, I don't know who put it there. I am either forty-nine or fifty today. I think it's forty-nine. Have you been gadding all over the neighborhood to say I'm fifty-five.

"No, dear; I only said so to Mrs. Warner, and, of course, she didn't keep it in mind three minutes. Why don't you want to be as old as you are?"

"Didn't I say I was forty-nine?" shouted Mr. Bowser as he fastened one of his coldest glares on her face. "You keep that in mind and don't add a century to it. I was told yesterday that I didn't look a day over thirty-seven, but I'll own up to twelve years beyond that."

The cook had been told that it was Mr. Bowser's birthday, and she had taken extra pains with the dinner. Her work had been a success, and naturally enough she felt proud of it. When the head of the house came down she felt privileged to say:

"Your fifty-fifth birthday, sir, and let me congratulate you and hope you will live to be 100 years old."

Mr. Bowser stopped short and looked at her and then waved her aside, and the almost broken hearted girl escaped to the kitchen and shed tears over his ingratitude.

"So the fifty-five business has got down her as it?" he asked of Mrs. Bowser as carved the steak.

"I must have told her fifty-five," she answered. But I'll set her right after dinner. I'll say that we made a mistake of six years in your age."

It was a good dinner, but neither enjoyed it, and now and then the tears stole into Mrs. Bowser's eyes as she remembered that she had not even received thanks for the chair. The meal had just come to an end when the door bell rang and a boy handed in a bottle of wine. It was labeled:

"For Bowser to drink on his fifty-fifth birthday, and may he live to drink many more."

"Who in blazes brought this?" demanded Mr. Bowser as the girl handed him the bottle and he read the card.

"A boy, sir."

"A boy, eh? Well, I'd have liked to grab him for a minute. How dare any one insult me like this?"

"My dear, no one intended to insult you," protested Mrs. Bowser. "It was sent in by some friend of yours for you to celebrate on, and of course he thought it was your fifty-fifth birthday."

"But by what right did he think so? Is it the general idea on this street that I was born about the time the battle of Bunker Hill was fought? If it is I'd better grow chin whiskers down to my knees. I think that bottle came from Green, and I'll let him know tomorrow that I consider it an insult."

Mrs. Bowser began to talk of a supposed mad dog which had run along the street during the afternoon and bitten a child, and in about ten minutes she got Mr. Bowser calmed down and he began to read his paper. He was just becoming interested when the bell rang again and the girl brought in a bouquet. On the card attached were the words:

"On Bowser's fifty-fifth birthday, and may his future pathway be a flowery one."

"Now, by the great horn spoon, but here's another insult!" he exclaimed as he read the greeting and rose up. "Woman, you must have spent the whole day going from house to house and saying I was fifty-five years old."

"What nonsense! Those flowers must have come from one of our neighbors, and it was a nice thing to do. It's more than we have ever done for one of them."

"I don't thank them, just the same, and here goes the bouquet out of the window. Let the cats fight over it. I'll find out who sent it and give 'em a piece of my mind."

Mrs. Bowser set out to pour oil on the troubled waters again, but it was no use. Mr. Bowser decided to walk out to soothe his wounded feelings, and he was just descending the doorsteps when five or six small boys, who had been waiting their opportunity and hanging over the gate, began to sing:

SIX WHITE FACED BOYS FLED UP THE STREET FOR THEIR LIVES.

"Our Mr. Bowser—our Mr. Bowser—
Our Mr. Bowser—owser—owser—owser—oh,
He is fifty-five today,
And not much longer will he stay
To be our Bowser—owser—owser—owser—oh!"

Mr. Bowser stopped dead short. Did his ears deceive him? He thought for a moment that they did, but then he caught the words:

"Our Mr. Bowser—our Mr. Bowser—
Our Bowser born in 1848;
To be sure he's fifty-five,
But he's very much alive,
And his reputation it is great."

There was a snort, a rush, a scramble, and six white faced boys fled up the street for their lives. Mr. Bowser stood looking after them with hard shut teeth, but one more adventure awaited him. A tramp who had been passing along on the opposite side of the street crossed over and said:

"Don't pay any attention to them, grandpa."

"Grandpa!" shouted Mr. Bowser, as he waved his fists around.

"Yes, grandpa. There's a lot of bad boys on this street, and when they get after an old man they don't know when to stop. I'll wait here, however, and see that they don't steal your hat. Do your children use you well, grandpa?"

Mrs. Bowser and the cat heard some one cry out in sudden surprise, followed by the sounds of a man running for his life, but they did not go to the door to see. They didn't want to get mixed up in any tragedy. M. QUAD.

Lesson in the International Series for May 24, 1903—Paul Before Agrippa.

THE LESSON TEXT.
(Acts 26:19-29.)

19. Whereupon, O King Agrippa, I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision.

20. But shewed first unto them of Damascus and at Jerusalem, and throughout all the coasts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they should repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

21. For these causes the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22. Having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witnessing both to small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come:

23. That Christ should suffer, and that He should be the first that should rise from the dead, and should shew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

24. And as he thus spake for himself, Festus said with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beside thyself; much learning doth make thee mad.

25. But he said, I am not mad, most noble Festus; but speak forth the words of truth and soberness.

26. For the king knoweth of these things, before whom also I speak freely: for I am persuaded that none of these things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner.

27. King Agrippa, believest thou the prophets? I know that thou believest.

28. Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian.

29. And Paul said, I would to God that not only thou, but also all that hear me this day, were both almost, and altogether such as I am, except these bonds.

NOTES AND COMMENTS.

Our attention has been called to the fact that when on trial Paul always endeavored to do more than secure his own acquittal; he sought to preach the Gospel at the same time to his judges and hearers. This he did when addressing the mob from the steps of the castle Antonia, when he was being examined by Felix, and now we shall see how uppermost that thought was when he was brought before Agrippa. Such an exhibition of zeal for Christ ought to thrill, shame and inspire.

Two years have passed since our last lesson, and Paul is still a prisoner at Caesarea. Felix, the Roman governor of the province of Judea, has just been recalled and Festus appointed as his successor. This lesson opens with the arrival of Festus.

The leading men among the Jews tried to take advantage of the new governor and his unfamiliarity with the case, and have Paul brought to Jerusalem again, at the same time plotting to kill him by the way. Fortunately for Paul, Festus preferred to try the case at his own capital. When the trial came, the Jews proved nothing but their own venomous hatred. This Felix knew well enough, but yet he was their governor, and did not want to gain their ill-will at the very beginning of his term, and so finally suggested another trial at Jerusalem. Paul knew only too well what that would mean, and to avoid falling into the hands of the Jews, he appealed to Caesar. It was the lesser of two evils.

Here for the third time in Acts is told the story of Paul's conversion, and the tremendous impression made upon him by his vision of the risen Lord.

"Wherefore:" Referring to the revelation of verses 12-18. "Repent and turn to God, doing works:" No repentance that does not result in a genuine turning of the whole life to God is of any value. Faith that does not include works is dead. "Saying nothing but what the prophets and Moses did say should come:" Paul claims that he has not forsaken Judaism, but that Christianity is the fulfillment and completion of Judaism. "The Christ must suffer:" A truth not believed by the Jews, and yet one which Paul says was taught in their Scriptures.

"Paul, thou art mad:" The Roman governor could not understand Paul's enthusiasm over the alleged resurrection of Jesus. Ramsay paraphrases his explamation thus: "Paul, Paul, you are a great philosopher, but you have no common sense"—the natural view for one not knowing the faith and hope of the Jews. "The king knoweth:" Agrippa would never have said what Festus did, for he knew the Messianic hope of the Jews, as well as the facts of the life of Christ and the spread of Christianity. "Believest thou the prophets:" Agrippa did not answer, but turned the question off with a light sneer that probably raised a laugh among the gay courtiers who thronged the hall. It was all he could do, for he was not willing to face the truth. The revised version probably gives the true interpretation, which amounts to this: "You think it's an easy matter to make a Christian of me!"

This was not a regular trial, for the appeal to Caesar had taken the case out of the hands of the local authorities. Paul seems to have been bringing the truth too close home to the king, and so the hearing was cut short and the brilliant assemblage filed out of the hall, but the impression Paul had made on them was decidedly favorable.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

Be not yourself disobedient to the heavenly vision. The risen Jesus has often appealed to you.

Show your obedience to Christ, both by accepting Him and then by laboring for the salvation of others.

If you are His disciple, Christ has chosen you for special work. Find out what that work is.

Iron bonds are better than the deceptive liberty of the wicked. Paul was Christ's free man, though bound.

"FIGHTING SAM."

Story of How One Hard-Fisted Man of God Cleaned His Town of the Cursed Saloon.

He was a preacher in charge of an extensive county circuit, the center of which was our picturesque village. For generations the little town had maintained an unwritten law that each of its citizens must have a nickname. The merchant was "Dooney," the blacksmith "Billy" and the grocer "Polly." Upon the arrival of Rev. Samuel Van Croft he was irreverently referred to as "Sam." Later, when his pugilistic qualities had been shown in chastising the young bullies who disturbed his meetings, the prefix was attached, and "Fighting Sam" received his new appellation with jolly good-nature, proving himself worthy of the title.

Life in this sequestered place was dull enough, but that some things are worse than monotony was demonstrated when a liquor dealer rented a small storeroom and began the sale of intoxicants. One week, and the peace of years was broken. The pleasant evening hours, wont to be filled with quiet and good cheer, were now hideous with sounds of revelry. Women dared not venture forth after nightfall, even to the weekly prayer meeting, lest some drunken man should reel cursing across their path. Most deplorable of all was the demoralizing effect upon the youth of the community.

But what to do was the question. Stewart, the rum seller, merely laughed in the faces of those who ventured to remonstrate. The town was incorporated, and there on the walls of his saloon was the government license. What were they going to do about it? The evil continued until the peace-loving citizens were in despair. Then it was that the Rev. Samuel Van Croft rose to the occasion.

"I must call on Brother Stewart," he said.

One evenng at sunset he walked into the saloon with his Bible under his arm. In answer to his greeting the proprietor inquired if he would have a drink.

"Thank you, no," replied the minister. "I didn't come here for a drink. I came here to tell you that you must take your accursed business out of town before to-morrow's sun sets or take the consequences."

Uttering a volley of oaths, Stewart seized an empty beer bottle, and advanced furiously upon the speaker. The minister calmly laid down his Bible upon a stool and divested himself of his clerical coat, whereupon the undersized saloonkeeper laid down his bottle and retreated behind the bar."

"I d'want to fight a preacher," he growled, "but you get out o' here."

"I'm going to, and so are you," was the parting word.

The next half hour was one of unusual commotion. The minister went from house to house talking earnestly and rapidly. Presently the sexton rang the church bell, then people crossed and recrossed the elm-shaded streets and gathered in groups, speaking in excited but exultant undertones.

In the deepening twilight the minister took his place behind the pulpit, facing an audience of bareheaded women, barefooted children, and men who, returning from the fields, left plows and teams standing in the street, while they stopped at the church to learn the cause of the excitement.

Never had the rugged preacher spoken with greater power than in this impassioned appeal to the hearts of his hearers. Could any law make the evil less an evil? Could a thousand government licenses make the wrong right? How would they reply to the saloonkeeper's taunting question? What were they going to do about it? His voice thundered out through the wide-open door down to the corner where Stewart sat listening and laughing.

"Better go up, fellers," he said, merrily, "an' see what Sam's got to say."

They went; and the message they brought back was:

"Sam's in dead earnest; this ain't no laffin' matter."

When the preacher finished his discourse he found his hearers ready for action. The doctor was the first on the list pledging $20. A young farmer followed with $10, and the sums were doubled and multiplied until within 20 minutes an amount had been paid or pledged which many times covered the money value of the saloon. Few words were spoken, but the stern purpose of all was: "The saloon must go." They were desperate men, ready to take desperate measures.

After a short consultation it was decided that Stewart be given a final warning, and the three potentates, the doctor, the preacher and the blacksmith, were chosen to wait upon him.

Arriving at the saloon they found it dark and deserted, and striking a match they saw only a vacant room. Broken bottles, scattered cards, an empty box and an overturned stool were all that remained to tell of the hasty flight.

"Fighting Sam" was long ago transferred to other fields, but he will always be remembered in a quaint little town where it is well and widely known that no saloons need apply.—M. A. Davidson, in Union Signal.

A TEMPERANCE RAILROAD.

Only Line in the World That Is Temperance Throughout Its Entire Length.

It is stated that the only railroad in the world along whose route liquor cannot be sold is the St. Louis, Watkins & Gulf railroad, from Lake Charles to Alexandria, La., a distance of 100 miles. The builder of the road bought and incorporated all the town sites along the line, and the deeds for all lots contain the following stringent anti-liquor clause:

"The said purchaser, his heirs or assigns, shall not at any time manufacture or sell intoxicating liquors upon said premises, except for medicinal, mechanical or scientific purposes; and should this condition be broken, this deed shall immediately and ipso facto be and become null and void, and the title shall immediately and ipso facto revert to and vest in said vendor, and said vendor shall not be under any obligations to return any part of the purchase price."

During the 13 years there has been only one violation, and the decision of the appellate court of Louisiana, in affirming the validity of this stipulation, is such that there will not be another violation.

A lot owner had violated its terms, and the railway company demanded the property. The judge ruled that the condition was binding, and that the land reverted to the railway company the moment it proved that the conditions of the deed had been disregarded.

The decision is clear, clean-cut and sweeping, establishing in a straightforward way, easily understood by anyone, every condition in the anti-liquor clause. The railroad and its projector are to be congratulated on their record and on the vindication of their policy by the courts.

HOT MILK OR RUM?

The Former Is Becoming a Dangerous Competitor of the Liquor Traffic in Stockholm.

Hot milk is becoming a dangerous competitor of the liquor traffic in Stockholm. Prof. Curt Wallis is a warm champion of the idea of combating the liquor evil with the aid of milk, and recommends the method introduced by Miss Utreeh in Stockholm.

This is quite simple. Just an automatic contrivance, something on the order of the slot machine, so popular in America, where for a small coin—five ore—a quarter of a litre of milk, heated to 70 degrees celsius, can be secured.

The experiment was begun last winter with two machines. In four months 18,000 mugs of hot milk had been disposed of. The experiment was considered so successful that four more machines were added this winter. The purpose of Miss Utreeh was to supply night workers and those who went to work early in the morning with a stimulating and warming beverage, and to guard against the temptation of visiting the liquor joints.

Prof. Wallis is of the opinion that the idea will be adopted all over Sweden and other countries, and will prove an untold blessing not only to the workingmen, but to the world at large.—Chicago Tribune.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Covington, Ky., has a new charter by which the saloons will be abolished.

No man is very sorry for the man who is held up and robbed while in a saloon.—Atchison Globe.

Because of a strong fight by the people of Carpinteria, Cal., this will in future be a prohibition town, the only one in Santa Barbara county.

New York is sending Deputy Police Commissioner Ebstein to Germany to study the excise question and learn how to handle the Sunday saloons.

Because the saloons of Benwood, W. Va., were closed on Sunday there were no drunken people seen on the streets, and old residents pronounced it the quietest Sunday in years.

State honors and a prize of $25 were won by Warren H. Barber, of Ripon, at the annual contest of the Wisconsin Intercollegiate Prohibition association. His subject was "Patriotism and Prohibition."

The first sentence of imprisonment for selling liquors to minors was passed by the court of special sessions, of New York, last month. The judge said: "This traffic must stop. In the future we will take more drastic measures."

Workingmen of Sweden Organizing.

The working men in Sweden are forming unions for the purpose of abstaining from the use of liquor for a year and are to contribute 15 cents a month to a fund, to be divided equally at the end of the year among those who have kept the pledge. Though it is true that the Swedish working men are doing this in retaliation for the imposition by the riksdag of what they consider an excessive and unjust tax on such spirits, as they claim are usually consumed by their class, yet it would seem that the idea of self-remuneration, as it were, for total abstinence for a year is a good idea.

Something Extraordinary.

Bird Island, Minn.

Since Sept., 1890, our daughter had spells of unconsciousness, sometimes [illegible] times a day and sometimes as high as [illegible] times. She was very nervous and irritable, lost her red cheeks, became thin in flesh, and her mind gradually failed. An eminent specialist treated her nearly one year without any effect. Instead of improving, she became worse, then we tried Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic. In a few weeks she showed improvement and since March, 1893, has not had a symptom of the disease, is now in good health and flesh, and completely herself again. There is something extraordinary about Pastor Koenig's Nerve Tonic to effect such a wonderful cure of such a tenacious disease.

SHANTUNG PONGEE GOWN. WAIST OF CLUNY INSERTION AND BLACK VELVET RIBBON

PONGEE COACHING COAT, BLACK VELVET & GILT TRIMMINGS

WHITE SILK WRAP, CLUNY LACE

COACHING COAT OF PONGEE SILK, LIGHT FITTED RED CLOTH WAISTCOAT, GILT TRIMMINGS

Coats and wraps to match gowns are as fashionable as ever this season, and yet never before this year was it necessary to have so many wraps and coats that in themselves are separate garments and can be worn with any gown. Made of different material, often of an entirely opposite color, and in themselves complete, they yet seem as if they were a part of whatever gown they are worn with. This fashion has at one bound attained a surprising popularity. Apparently shapeless as are all the wraps and coats of the moment, with the exception of the severe tailor-made variety that goes with the short skirt, they are in reality most carefully fitted and shaped, and, in spite of apparently hiding every line and disguising the figure, they really bring out every good point. If a woman be tall and have broad shoulders, her height and breadth are accentuated—that is, the desirable breadth. If she be short and stout, the sloping shoulders and the trimmings will be arranged to make her slender in spite of herself. Most cleverly will the extra fulness in the front of the cloak which is worn by the tall, slender woman be done away with, while the same effect of being loose and not fitting at all is still carried out. The eye is caught by the long lines of trimming, which give the much-to-be-desired slender appearance.

All light colors are tremendously popular—so popular that it is safe to predict that in a few months at latest dark colors will be in again. But for the moment light tans, ivory white, champagne color, gray, pale blue, pale green, pale red and even a light shade of pink, are in favor, and in these same shades are made up smart and attractive coats and cloaks. Cords and tassels of passementerie, dyed to match the material exactly, are used in connection with heavy lace and heavy embroidery or are deemed sufficient as trimming, with the addition of a narrow velvet collar and revers, velvet with a polka dot of white being preferred and a plain color, or with facings of a plain colored foulard, with polka dot of white. Last year's fashion of pongee or India silk in pale green, blue or red, embroidered with heavy linen thread in a design of grapes and leaves, is still fashionable, but is not so new or smart as some of the other embroideries. The newest are made of the basket weave of Madras linen—white, blue, pink or yellow—heavily braided with a fine white soutache braid. In themselves the materials for this embroidery are inexpensive, but the work, to meet the stamp of approval, must be done by hand, and, consequently, this is never an inexpensive trimming, although perfectly possible for even an amateur to turn out.

The length of the coats varies considerably. The so-called three-quarter length—so long that it reaches almost to the hem of the skirt—and the length that comes only to a little below the waist are both considered smart. But the long three-quarter is considered the smartest of all and is more becoming, for when a coat or wrap of this description is too short it makes too much fulness without the lines being long enough to modify that fulness. The accordion-plaited cloth and chiffon wraps are as fashionable as they were when first seen in Paris five summers ago, and are made without any trimming, but are not so good for carriage wear as are those of plain cloth, trimmed with either the cord and tassels, passementerie ornaments or the bands of heavy lace insertion. In white these coats are especially smart and becoming, and they are very useful also in pongee for driving and for duet cloaks. A costume of pale gray, with a long gray wrap, is impressively smart, and the gray wrap can do duty as well for a white or a black gown, but, of course, is not so smart as the white with everything else. The one tone of color carried out by having the gown, the coat and the hat all of one shade is nearly always becoming, and when it is not, just another touch of some other color added is all-sufficient to make it distinctive and original. At the present moment silk gowns in shantung taffeta, with a wrap of the same color—not necessarily of silk, but of cloth—are quite the newest, and as such are very charming.

It would seem as though velvet were never to go out of fashion. But the velvet sold by the yard, for gowns and coats and trimmings, and the velvet ribbons used also for trimmings, velvet rosettes, stiff velvet bows and the narrow velvet ribbon run through beading, have reappeared again on the latest designs for summer frocks. In many instances the touch of contrast given by the black velvet is very smart and almost always becoming. The gowns cut low in the neck—we have been threatened with these for the last two or three, even four, years, in fact—are now worn with a broad band of black velvet around the throat. This is a fashion that, strangely enough, is always pronounced becoming, but it has an unhappy faculty of adding many years to the apparent age of the wearer, as any woman who has passed the first freshness of youth or has a tendency to a double chin has found out to her sorrow. But black velvet is fashionable, and as such is used when run through beading in rosettes or bows or in the new collars, or the black velvet ribbon is made up into stiff collars as well as worn tied with a bow at the back of the neck.

Although broad lace collars on gowns and wraps are not so popular as they were, the long-shouldered effect is gained more easily by these collars than by anything else—that is, if one has not been provided by nature with the long, drooping shoulder line.

On many of the summer gowns that are more or less simply made this wide collar is one of the features of the season, and it is seen on many of the new wraps, the collar costing even more than the entire garment, for expensive lace shows to much better advantage when so used than in any other way. Lace the color of the coat or wrap or of ecru is more used than all white, although an attempt is now being made to use the clear white with tan or gray, rather than ecru. There are several different kinds of laces. In fact, almost all kinds are considered possible, but the fad of the moment is a fine lace used in connection with shirrings of chiffon. This style of collar with long ends in front is really a wrap in itself, and on some of the long coats is made so that it can be taken off and worn separately if so desired. But somehow it makes the coat cumbersome and does not seem so trim or so in keeping as the deep collar of lace the color of the coat. The sleeves are all very large and are put in such a way that they look as though they were part of the cloak, and not sleeves at all. They are wide at the wrist, and it is very rarely that there is any lace on them. If the sleeve is fancy, with a deep turned-back cuff, there may be insertion of lace, but lace ruffles and things of that sort are quite out of date. This applies to the wraps, not to the short fancy coats of dark cloth which are now finished with double or triple ruffles of pleated white muslin and lace combined. On the silk and pongee coats and all the so-called traveling or driving cloaks the rule is that there shall be no trimming likely to catch the dust, and, consequently, only a facing is used in the fronts and on the collar and revers, if revers there are, because for the moment they are rather out-of date.

Where And How To Grow The Edible Mushroom.

Although heat and humidity influence all kinds of vegetation, yet heat seems to exert less and humidity a greater influence on mushrooms than on other plants. For this reason it is in spring and autumn that the fleshly mushroom flourishes most vigorously in the United States, which is one of the most favorable countries known to the class, and in spring and autumn mushroom hunters can be found in field and forest searching for the delicacies they know so well. The members of the various mushroom clubs are enthusiasts on the subject, and there are those who assert that the cultivation of this fungus will eventually have an important bearing on the world's food supply. If more were known about the edible species it would form a more important part of our diet than now, for we would realize more clearly that for home consumption it is a healthful and grateful food, and when successfully grown for market it becomes so profitable that the original investment often is doubled. In parts of Russia, Germany and Italy mushrooms furnish the peasants and working classes with a food that takes the place of meat. The French often cultivate them in cellars and caves, and they may be grown in all kinds of greenhouses and even in boxes and frames, which can be obtained at little expense and which will supply enough for domestic use. Spring and autumn are the best seasons, and the mushrooms are usually in full bearing at the end of four weeks.

Some women use the cellars of their houses for mushroom beds, and in the case of those who wish to grow a few, a part of the room can be partitioned off alongside the wall to protect it from cold draughts. Shelves can be placed above the bed as in any other part of the cellar. This has been known to work admirably, especially if the temperature of the cellar varies from 50 to 60 Fahrenheit. One grower markets nearly three thousand pounds yearly from the cellar and attributes the success to absolute cleanliness and coats of lime wash which are frequently given the cellar walls. Such beds in a dwelling house may seem unsanitary to some people, but when rightly handled and thoroughly prepared before being started in the house they emit no odor.

No person can grow mushrooms more successfully than the farmer's wife, yet, strange to say, she has paid little attention to this branch of home gardening. Little skilled labor is necessary, and after planting all the care consists in maintaining an even temperature and in gathering the crops. Many women in search of employment can find no pleasanter work than mushroom growing, but only lately has this been realized. There is nothing arduous about it; the spawn, or bricks, can be obtained from the seedmen and nearly every yard or even a small patch of land affords the conditions necessary to the cultivation of the common varieties. The market, too, is increasing and there is every indication that as it becomes better known the cultivation of these succulent dainties will become an important industry. Space that would otherwise be unavailable can be beautified and a little knowledge of the market demands will enable one to know what kinds to cultivate and where to sell them. The mushroom clubs are advocating the industry for women, and they collect every specimen available, so that it may be catalogued and tested and the edible species become commonly known.

Florists have planted thousands of square yards under their greenhouse benches and in this way first utilized the loam needed in their greenhouse work. Chicken raisers are also becoming more and more interested, seeing in the cultivation of this fungus a good winter business. Near San Francisco is a canning factory which is used to put up mushrooms, grown in sheds filled with long and narrow beds. All the work is done by machinery, and railroad cars are used to haul the earth. Around Buffalo, N. Y., tunnels have been utilized, and St. Paul has in caves on the river bank beds of mushrooms which are noted all over the West. The beds in Buffalo and St. Paul, like the famous mushroom caves of Paris, which are yearly inspected by the government, are at such an even temperature that whole acres of mushrooms can be gathered.

All edible fungi should be collected in their prime and prepared and served as speedily as possible, lest decomposition set in. Another precaution is to carefully scrutinize the mushroom for the minute grubs which sometimes infest the entire surface. A vertical cut through the stem and cap will settle this question.

The Social Obligations Of The Working Woman

In the good old days when the working woman was a being set apart from social opportunities to almost as great an extent as her conventual sister she enjoyed certain distinct advantages as well as certain very apparent disadvantages. The discussion of her duty to society usually resolved itself into a discussion as to what she should wear during business hours and as to how far she might compromise with her "womanliness" by failing to observe elevated masculine feet and coatless masculine arms in an office.

But nowadays the problem is more complicated.

She is invited to dinners and dances as a matter of course, provided that she knows dinner and dance giving people. Her acquaintances no longer say: "It would be so pleasant to have Elaine down for the club tea on Saturday afternoon, only, of course, she doesn't care for that sort of thing. She paints, you know." Week's end parties are no longer withholden from her on the ground that law and a fondness for rural relaxations are antagonistic tastes. It is not supposed that she scorns golf tournaments because she teaches Greek in a woman's college, or that a yachting trip is out of the question for her because she is a real estate broker.

Of course all this is pleasant, but he who imagines that it is unalloyed joy to the working woman is reckoning—as she cannot—without the dressmaker, the tailor, the cabby, the servants and the other expensive adjuncts of a social career. For, accepted as a fact, the professional woman is no longer allowed for as a mild monstrosity. She may no more make her appearance at a formal dinner clad in a shirt waist and cloth skirt, on the ground that she is a physician, than her brother can make his in knickerbockers and a Norfolk jacket and expect excuse to be offered because he is a landscape gardener or a railroad engineer.

Take the case of Hester, for example. Hester teaches literature in a swell private school. That in itself implies expenditures. One may not train the youthful mind there to appreciate the beauties of Shelley or the thunderings of Carlyle unless one is properly attired. The scions of the aristocracy may not hear that George Eliot did not begin to write novels early in life from a woman whose tie is badly chosen and badly tied. And when under the guidance of the head of the literature department the class is taken to see "As You Like It," the head of the literature department must be a model in matinee costuming.

But in addition to these unavoidable expenses Hester has others. She has a wide and varied circle of acquaintances. The parents of some of her pupils are on her visiting list. She has her own agreeable circle, and one distinguished one which has descended to her from days of former greatness. Moreover she is pretty, she can talk well, and, to the everlasting gratitude of hostesses, she can listen even better. She is, therefore, in great demand, and her fellow teachers envy her in a good natured way.

Some of them were telling her of her good fortune last Monday when she returned from two days at Tuxedo. The country, they said, must be perfectly lovely at this season of the year and she must have had a great measure of comfort visiting in a well appointed house, to say nothing of the delight she could not have failed to derive from intercourse with so many agreeable persons who did not talk "shop." Hester admitted all these blessings, and then she produced a notebook.

"It comes high," she observed after making sure that no lurking pupil was near to be corrupted by her slang, "but we must have it."

"Comes high," echoed the others. "We thought you were visiting."

"I was," replied Hester. Then she consulted her book. "Tip to the coachman," she announced, "fifty cents—I think he utterly despised me for not making it a dollar; silver coin seems so insignificant to him. Tip to the maid, another fifty—and she laid out the contents of my bag with an air of such carefully repressed disdain that I almost made it two dollars, just to show her that I was a person to be respected, even if I did bring only one dinner dress for three dinners and two 'changes' for three days. Tip to man who was on hand to give me a solitary breakfast at seven, one dollar—you couldn't offer him less, you felt so keenly that you had sinned unpardonably in routing him out in time for such an ungodly repast. I think that is all—for tips."

But the tips are not the whole or even the worst of the drains on the working woman who aspires to "go out." It's clothes and carriage hire and return courtesies and time and energy. Man, proud man, clothed in a single evening suit, may make a season's round of dinners and operas and dances. He may with it wear the overcoat which does duty by day, and not be conspicuously badly dressed. A woman whose chiffon flounces or spangled train float free beneath a jacket of Persian lamb or of broadcloth is grotesque. Moreover, she is extravagant. Crush all her billows under the restricting folds of an ordinary coat and they are half ruined.

The "working man" may walk to or from any social engagement and no one will regard him curiously. Imagine a woman in pale pink or violet crepe, with a Spanish lace scarf over her head and a white lined cloak over her shoulders, walking out to dinner! The chances are that she would not arrive, the constabulary having interfered. She may not even ride in a car with comfort.

The working woman is often an unattached woman, living alone and with no comfortable establishment to aid her in her return hospitality. Yet a return is necessary, not because of the mental attitude of her entertainers, but because of her own. She may consort with millionaires, but if she does she wants them also to consort with her. She cannot take them yachting or invite new and attractive dining place and give it them to her country house. She must, therefore, in order to preserve the feeling of equality and reciprocity which distinguishes the relation of friends from that of patron and followers, devise some other form of entertainment. She must organize a first night theatre party, she must discover a —to use the most abused word in the English language—bohemian dinner there. She must send a bunch of flowers or a new book. She must introduce her acquaintances to new nooks and corners which they have not explored.
